Together . . .

. . . WITH STUDYING

Students take great pride in the rigorous and competitive academic program at Clover Hill High School. Due to these characteristics one may find people studying almost anywhere — in classes, in the library, or by the lockers after school. There are so many varied habitats in use for studying that it is difficult to go anywhere on school grounds and not see someone in the process of learning, whether it be geometric theorems, or the Amendments to the Constitution, or even how to conjugate Spanish verbs.

A major factor in this constant process is the fundamental idea of any individual at Clover Hill — that one must work to receive those coveted 'A's on tests, quizzes, laboratory experiments, and other such endeavors. Generally this work entails studying whether it be learning dates, memorizing formulas, or recalling lab procedures.

. . . WITH ORGANIZATION

Achieving Our Goal Requires Order

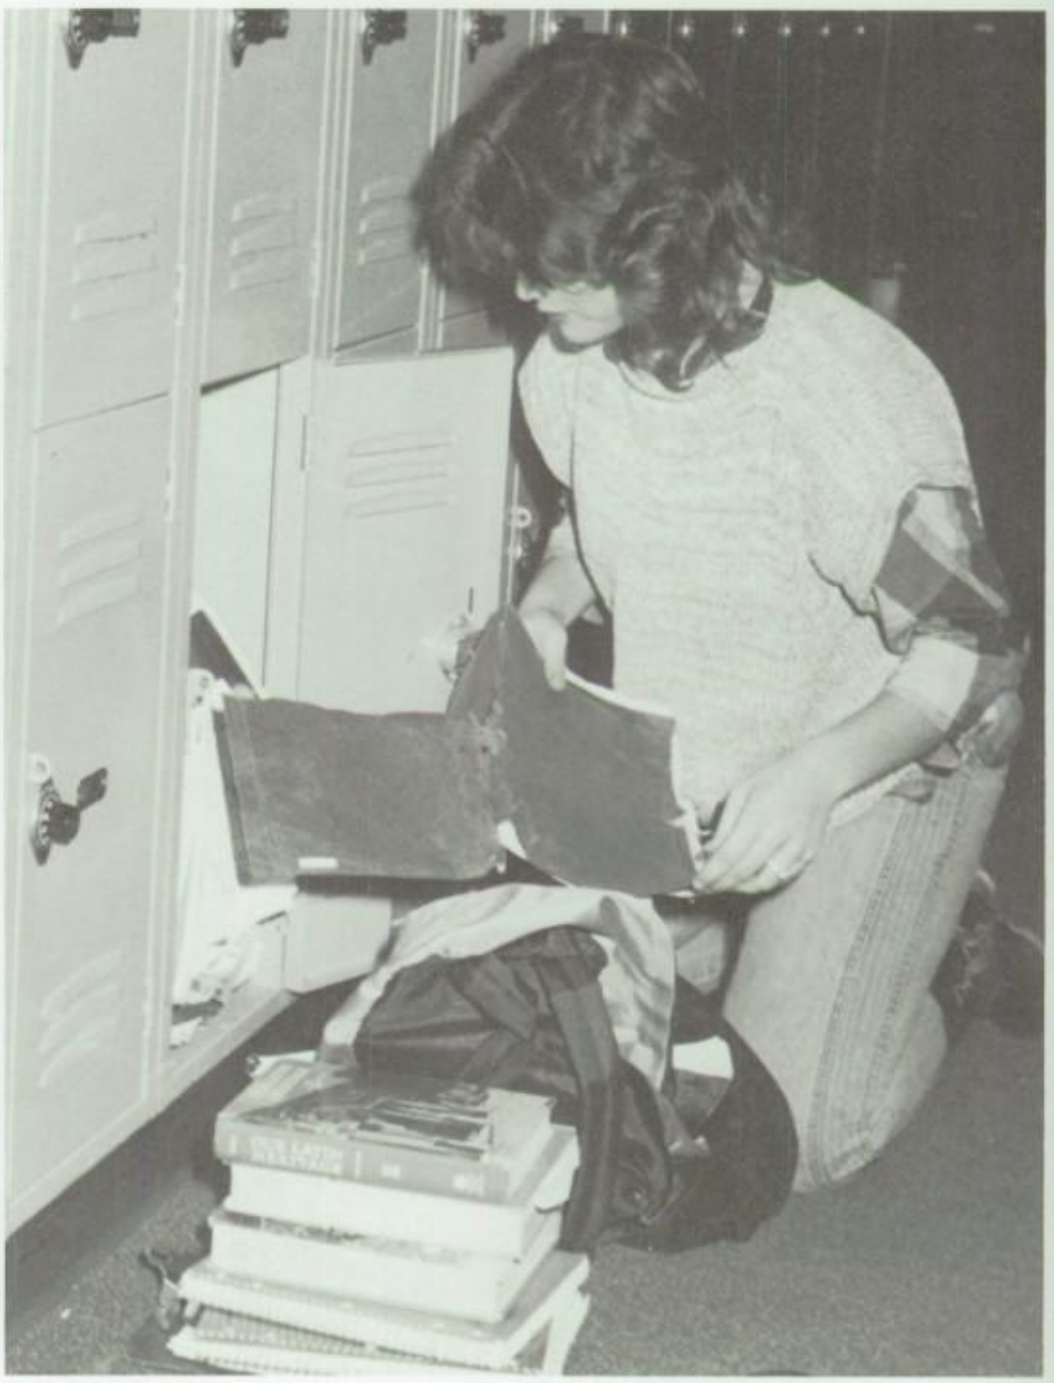
Before anything can become a reality, careful organization must take place. Both students and staff members have to make plans for everything they do. To be able to have the life a teenager wants, all students have to budget their time. Each pupil must plan for thirty hours a week to spend at school and a few hours more to allow for homework, and the rest of the time is his to use at his discretion. For both success in school and an enjoyable life, strong organization skills are necessary. Many students find that the most difficult place to keep clean and organized is their locker. They find it necessary to clean their storage compartments and discover a way to keep their things in an orderly manner. One of the hardest things students are expected to do is write a paper. Every assignment requires both thought and organization. Those who receive high marks on reports are those who have planned ahead, collected information, and written the assignment ahead of time. The success of any student can depend upon his ability to keep things in order.

Teachers spend many hours developing lesson plans to make sure that they are always well prepared to educate the students. The main office, guidance office, library, and many other places in the school depend upon a well planned system to keep things in order. The organization of the county's schools is so important that many days students are given a break so that the staff can meet. These meetings are held to make sure the school is run as efficiently as possible and also make sure the school year is enjoyable to all. This planning helps the teachers do their job better and makes it easier too.

Together the students and the staff meet to accomplish a number of things. Coaches and athletes have afternoon practices to discuss plans for the week's competitions and to work on certain plays. When the clubs and organizations at Clover Hill gather together, they discuss ideas for future activities. Without this organization no team or club could have a successful year.

Thus organization is a key ingredient to the success of Clover Hill. Without it we would be a group of people going into rooms to discuss nothing of importance, sport teams would be a running group of confused beings, and clubs would no longer exist. Also, students would not be successful, and teachers could not perform their job.

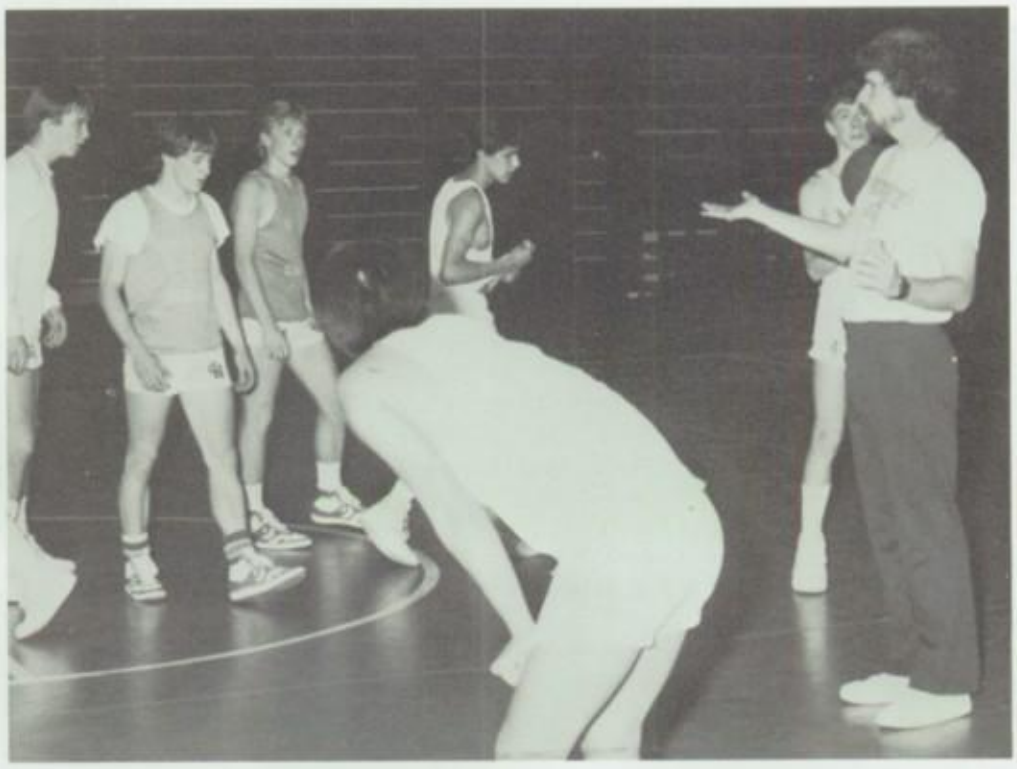
Senior Class President Tener Williams is thinking of all the time she spent trying to get the senior hall decorated for Homecoming Week.

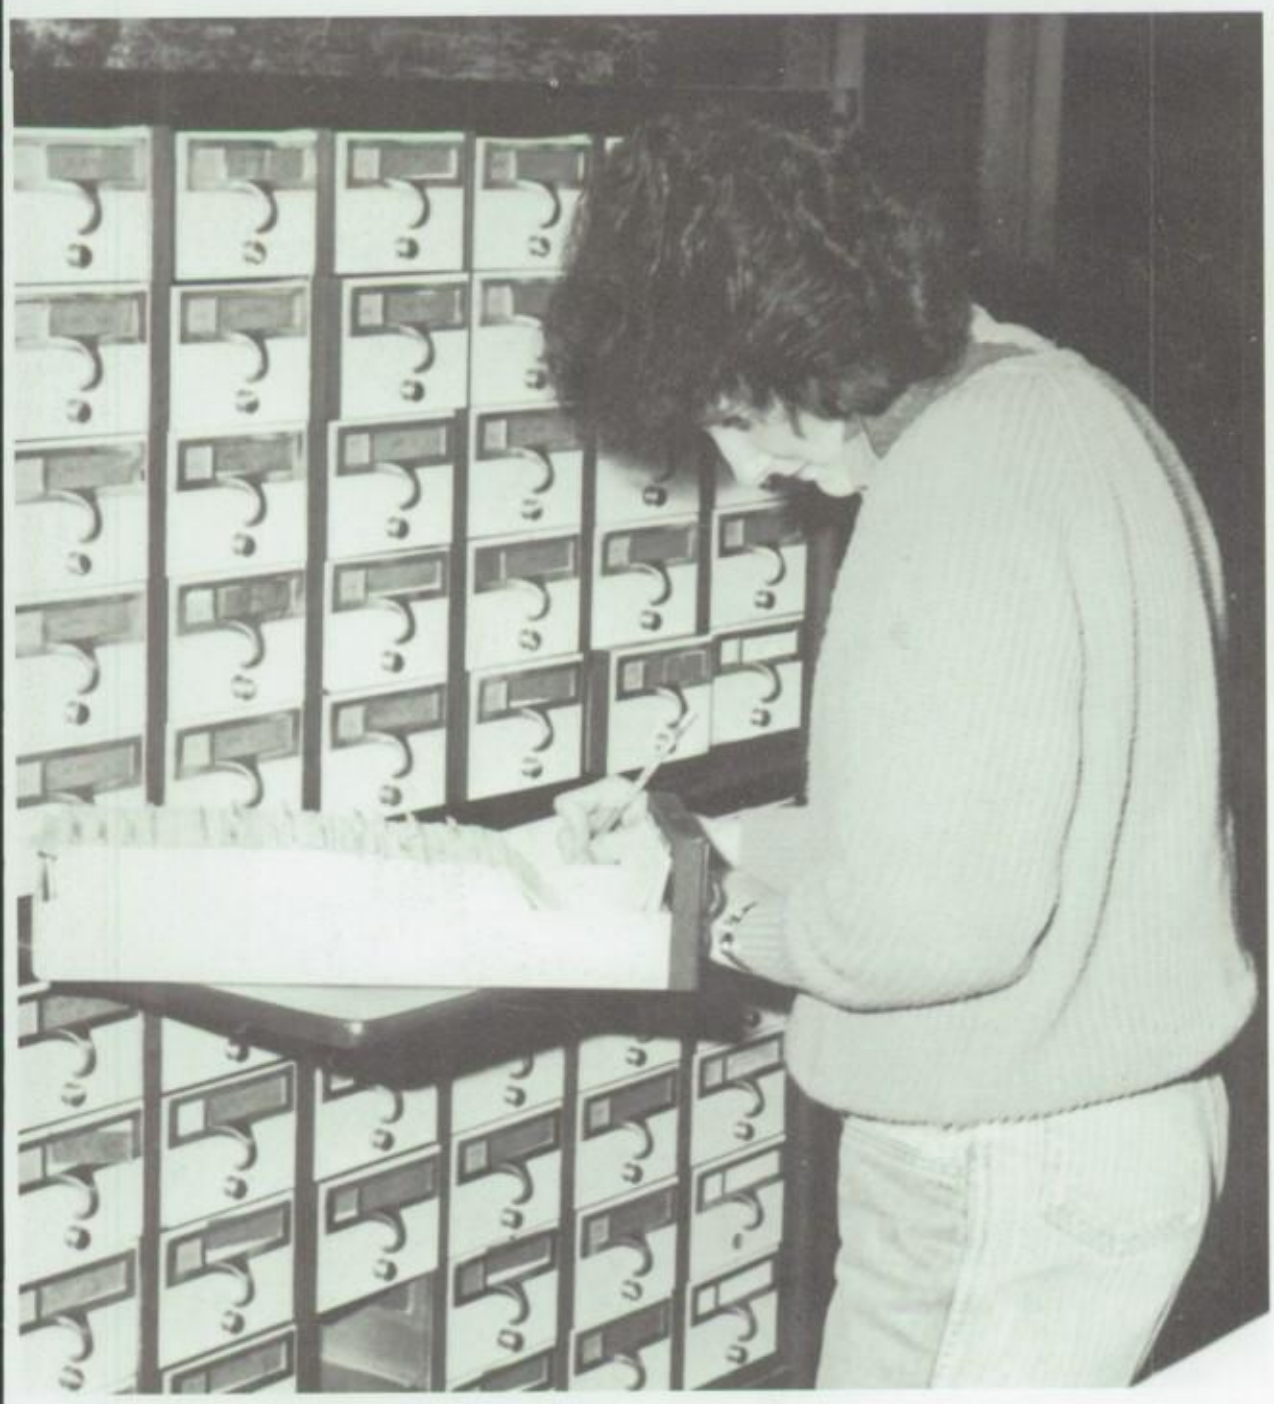


As her Pre-Calculus falls from her locker, Senior Candace Neff says to herself "There's got to be a better way!" for the millionth time.

Cheering Sponsor Mrs. Brenda Weston helps the varsity cheerleaders organize a routine for the Friday night basketball game.

During an afternoon practice, Coach Willie O'Brien tells some members of the J.V. Basketball team how to improve their game.





To help make the first day of school less hectic, the teachers meet the day before to discuss new policies and plans for the year. Here, Business teacher Mrs. Joyce Locke, Guidance Counselor Mrs. Gayle Pollard, French teacher Mrs. Archer Parkerson, and Government teacher Mr. Ted Salmon.

Junior Michelle Curles knows the importance of organization when writing a term paper. She looks in the card catalog to find a book on the subject rather than spend hours looking for a source.

. . . WITH DREAMING

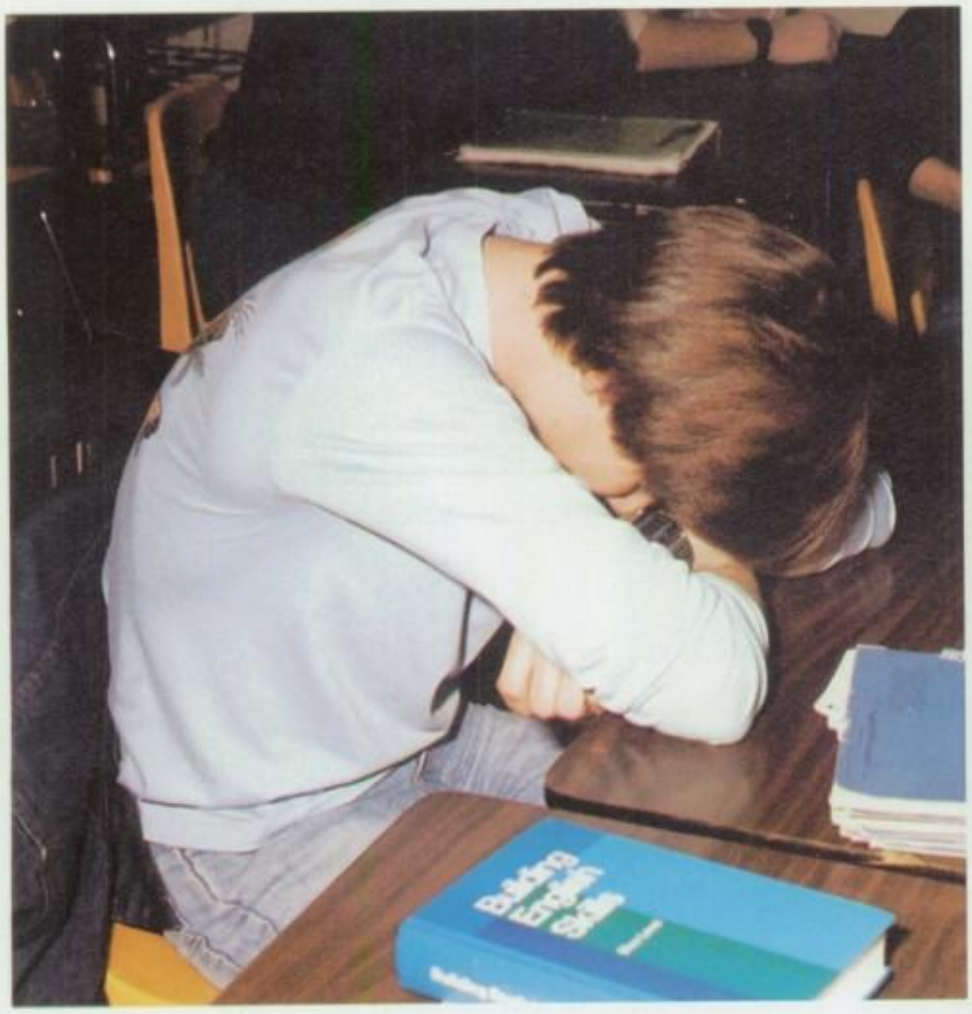
Fantasizing About Our Perfection Brings Us Together

All humans have a tendency to dream about their future, and members of Clover Hill High School are no exception. A student in an English class takes a moment from reading a Shakespearean play to think of all the money the characters have and what he could do with it. At the same time a pupil in a language class is thinking of traveling abroad. Instead of listening to an explanation of the three branches of the government, another thinks of the power he would have if he became the president of the United States. In his science class, the next Albert Einstein thinks about his Nobel Prize. One common dream for all students is graduation. Students also hope for a car that will make heads turn; a part-time job with good pay, excellent hours, and interesting tasks; popularity; and a particularly close friend.

Students are, by no means, the only people at Clover Hill to dream. Teachers dream that the students they teach will become the best to ever leave the school. A year that passes smoothy is every administrator's dream. Guidance counselors hope that students are as happy as they can be at school and at home.

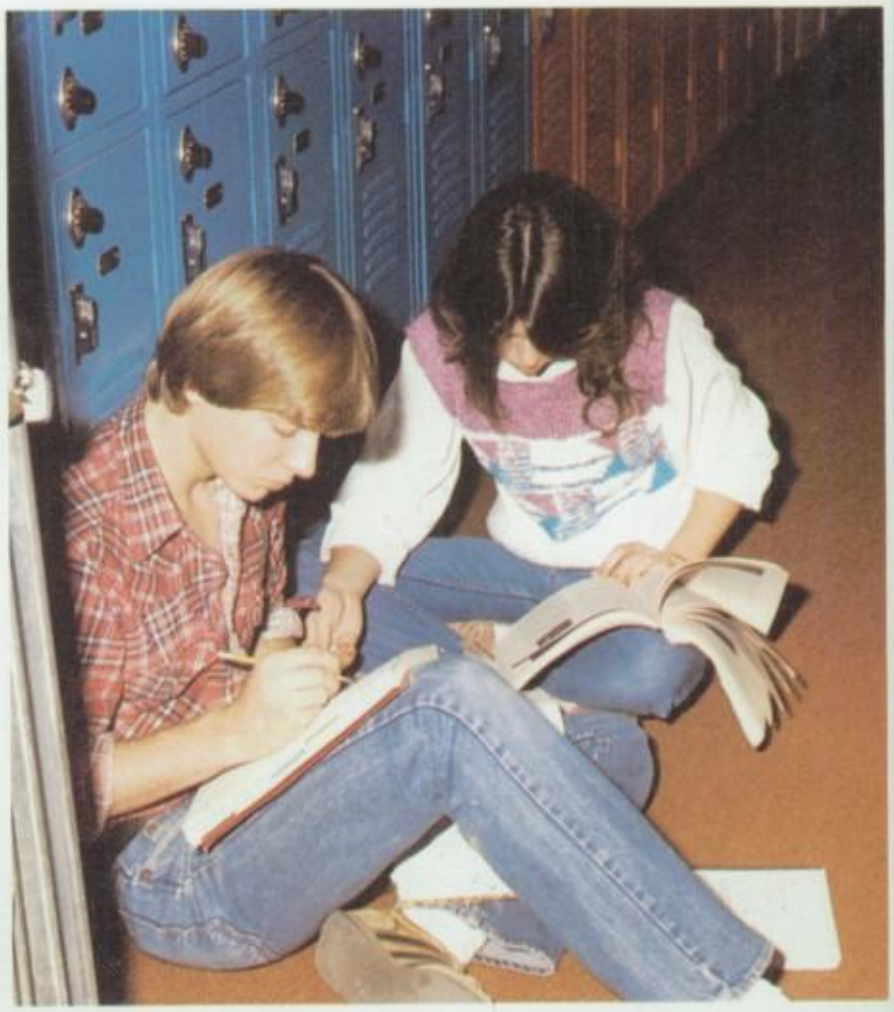
Apart from our dream for ourselves we have our goal — to make Clover Hill as perfect as possible. To fulfill this dream of perfection would be like putting a puzzle together. A spectacular Homecoming game, profitable fund raisers, and an unforgettable Prom would be one piece. Another piece would be academic excellence for ourselves and in competitions that pit the school against others in the county and state. Coaches, athletes, and fans alike dream of making the year the best with numerous green and gold banners, trophies, gold medals, and championships. The last piece of the puzzle is one each person hopes to fill — the one representing his own happiness.

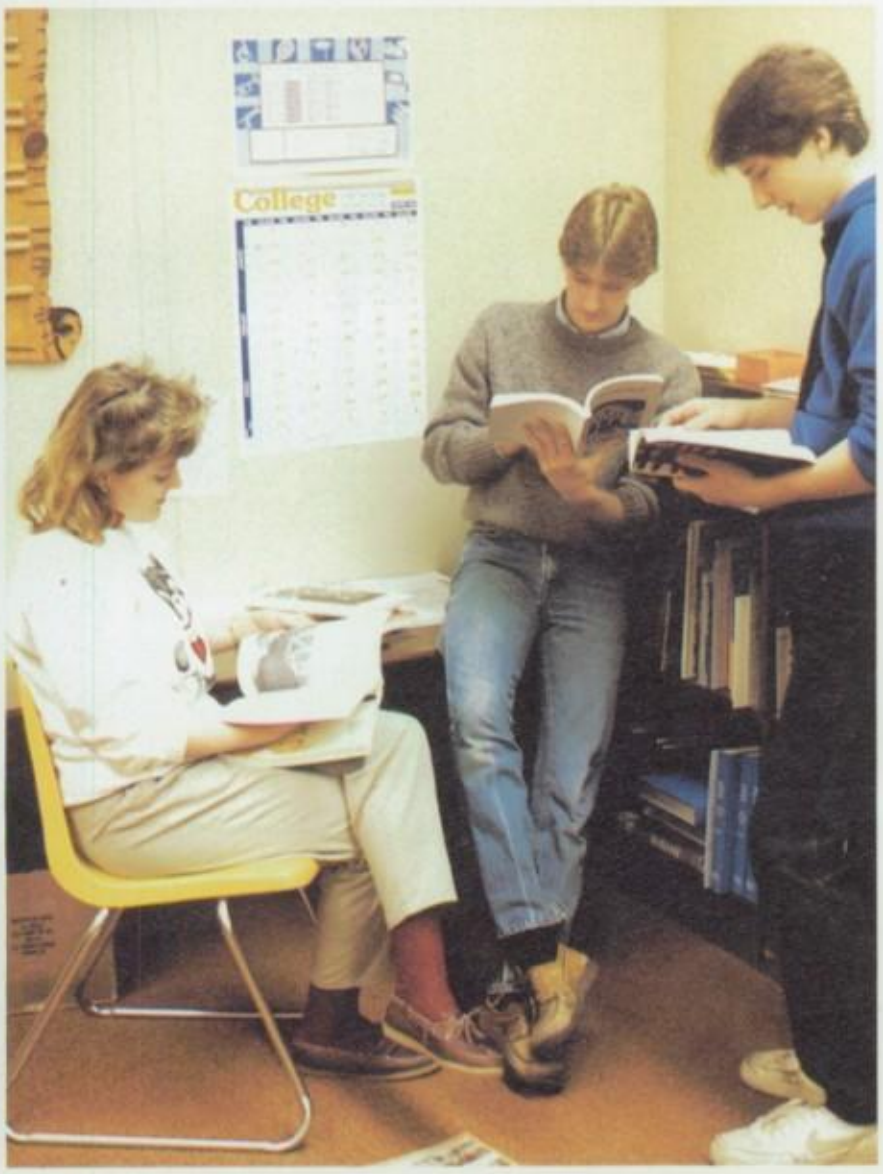


While English teacher Mrs. Margaret Flanagan reads a story to her class, Sophomore Robbie Soles puts his head on the desk to think what it would be like to be one of the characters.

As the school year begins, thoughts of graduation reign supreme in the minds of seniors while the other classes count the days till it is their turn.

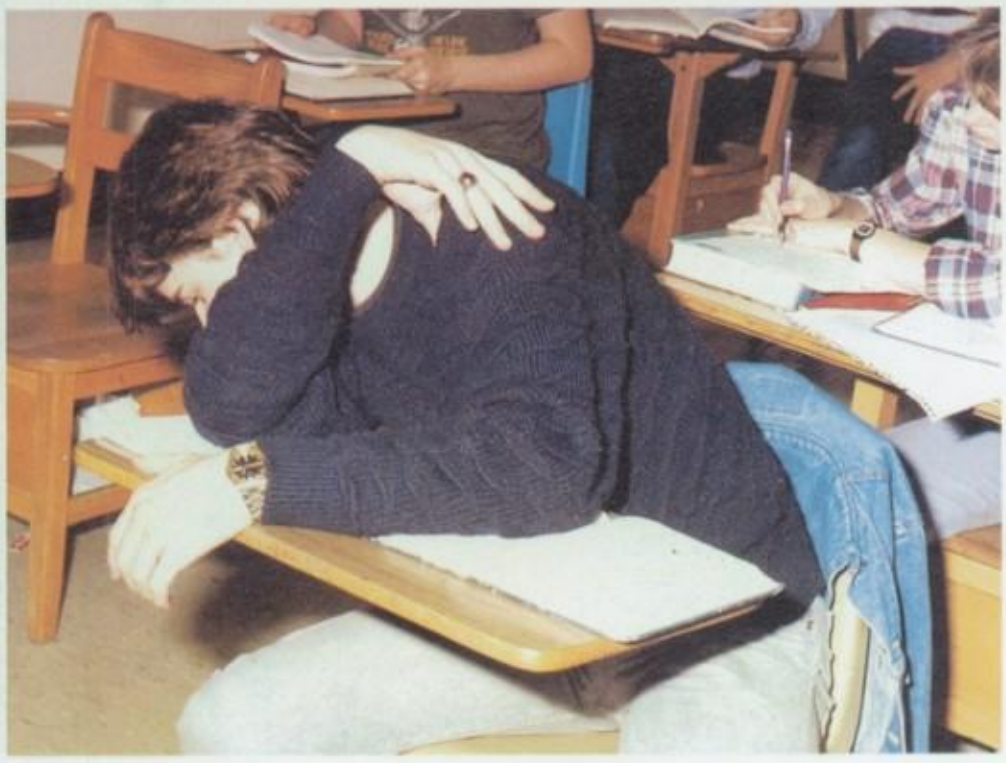
Everyone hopes for a person that can make studying fun, and it looks like Juniors Gene Hottinger and Linda Russell have accomplished that.





Seniors Wendy Wood, Wayne Vaughan, and Brett Swanson thumb through college catalogs in the Guidance Office to help them choose the university of their dreams.

While waiting for the bank machine to give them their money, Sophomore Nita Southers smiles after hearing her classmate Suzzanne Tate joke, "Wouldn't it be bold if thousands of dollars popped out?"



To be handed the keys to a car such as this Mercury Sable is a dream belonging to everyone.

Junior Tom Mervine takes a minute from a homework problem to ponder about his plans for the weekend.

. . . WITH DILIGENCE

Working Together, We Realize Our Goals

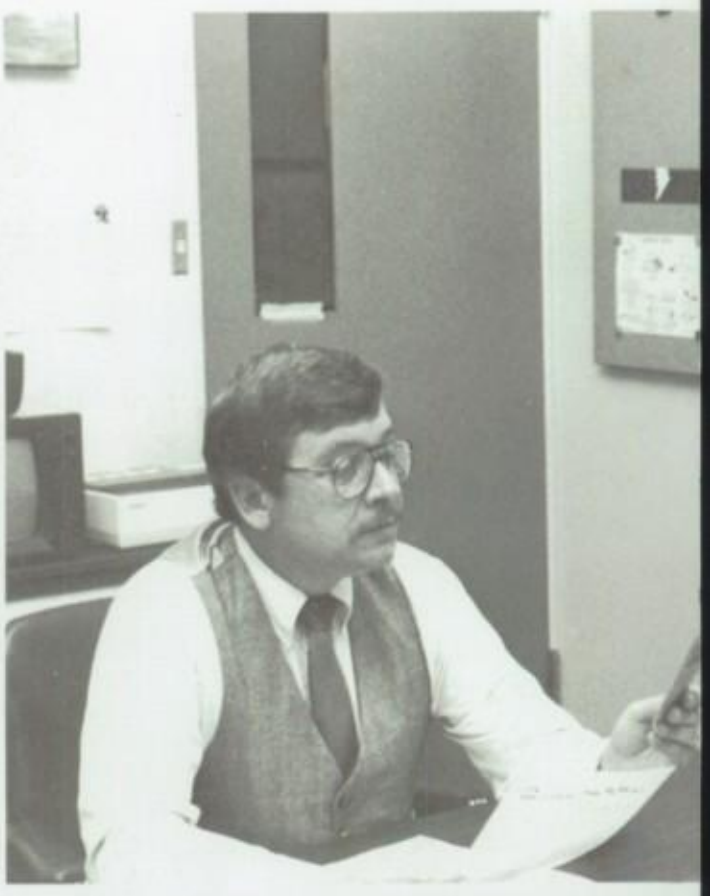
Working with the people around us is a prerequisite for success. One of the major strengths of Clover Hill is our ability to work as a team. Each segment of this team participates in the educational process. The students, who benefit the most from their involvement, work with the staff to become the best. Studying, participating, and being attentive in class are major responsibilities of pupils. Teachers with their experience provide the most conducive environment for the students to achieve their goals. The addition of Project TEE, a program designed to help teachers improve their skills brings the academicians even closer together. Our teaching team is led by Principal Dr. Vorhauer and Assistant Principals Mr. Walters and Mrs. Wilson. Their job is to supervise the students and the staff to make sure everyone is able to be as successful as possible during the year. Our guidance counselors also play a role. They help us select a schedule, chose a college, and provide us with willing listeners. Additionally, the custodial staff, cafeteria workers, bus drivers, librarians, and secretaries do their part to make sure the school operates as efficiently as possible.

The numerous athletes, managers, and coaches have learned that the idea of teamwork is of paramount importance when thinking of victory. This emphasis is very obvious in team sports, such as football, basketball, and baseball because they have to help the team score points and stop their opposition from doing the same. Teamwork is also apparent in the more individual sports like gymnastics, track, wrestling, and tennis because here victory or loss depends upon the support the participants give each other. Another form of teamwork visible at sporting events is the spirited fans who give the athletes their support. By cheering teams to victory or consoling them in times of need, these peppy students, parents, and faculty members show the team that they want victory. This encourages the players to work harder to win. The success of the 1985-86 season proves Clover Hill has learned well the concept of team work.

The Cavalier clubs and organizations have found hard work and working together necessary to succeed in their activities. The various club fund raisers work best with the support of everyone. On the same note, activities like dances, parade entries, and publications never get off the ground without help from every club member. During the 1985-86 school year, events like Homecoming, the Powder Puff game, and prom proved that the clubs involved worked many long hours together.

In order to get the things we want it is necessary to find multiple means of income. Through these jobs, young people learn the value of working with others and attaining needed funds for college, a first car, or whatever the need.

Social environment along with academic and athletic involvement plays an important role in lives of students. As we all strive to reach our common goals, we have a feeling of community that is unique in its recognition of many talents here at Clover Hill High School.



While buying a pack of gum, Freshman Bubba Glover ran into Junior Paula Whitaker as she works her part-time job at Winn Dixie.

Proving again that a job is never finished for a student or a teacher, Senior Brian Manns and Government teacher, Mr. Bill Pritchett, work during second lunch going over a test Brian has missed.

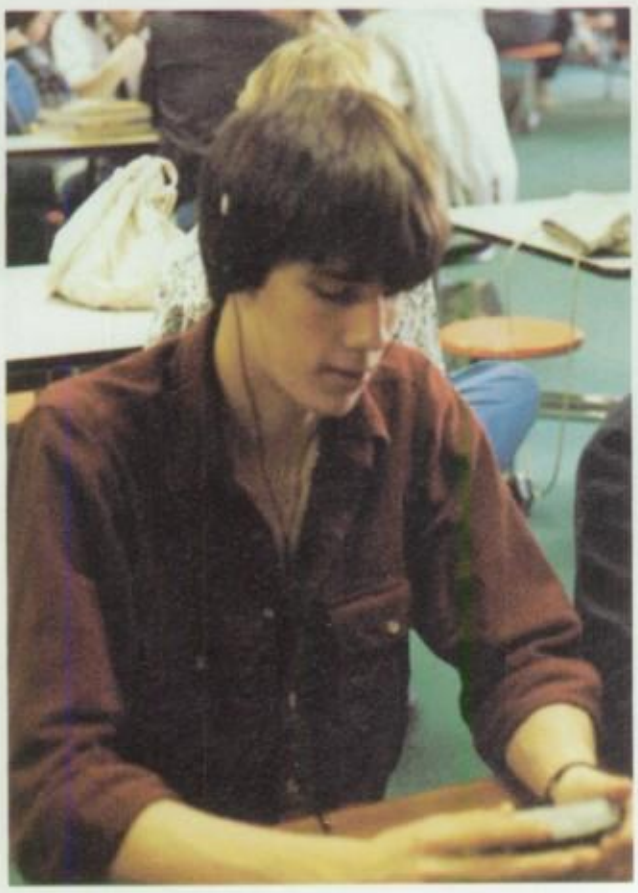
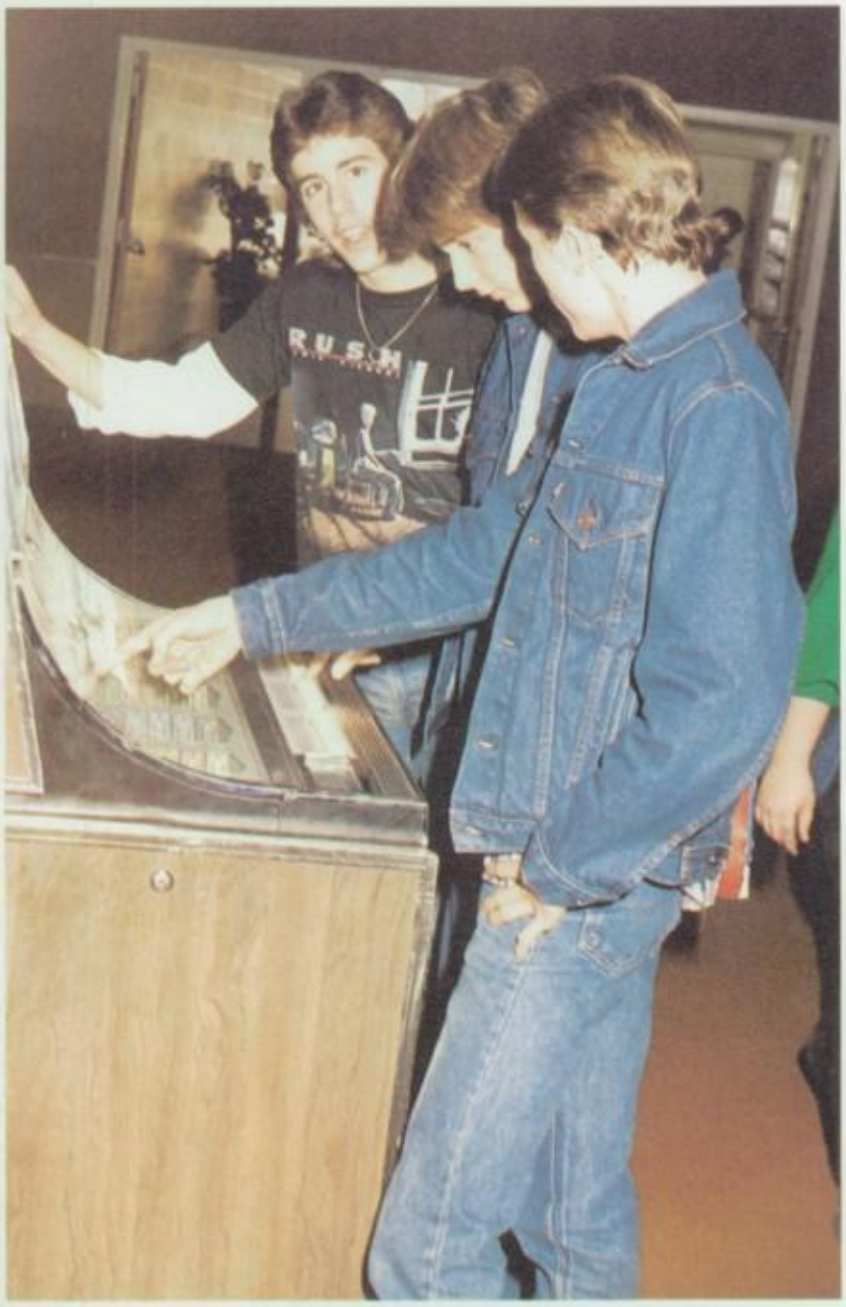
Senior Kari Ramsey, listens attentively to her brother while eating lunch.





Three Cavaliers discuss selections in this year's new jukebox.

Dr. Vorhauer, sports cream pie from the pie-throwing contest at a pep rally.

Breaking the routine

At Clover Hill the students work hard year-round to attain many important goals in academics and athletics, yet there are times when a little levity and a lot of spirit are in order. These attitudes are exhibited in almost every place the student body congregates whether at an athletic event, during a pep rally, or even in class.

This year pep rallies have been frequent as well as full of antics of faculty and students. Not only have the addition of the new male cheerleaders added a lot to the festivities, but both administration and faculty members have been volunteers in pie throwing contests, obstacle courses, and dress-up contests.

In class the voices of Clover Hill students ring in cheerful unison as the most important goal of a school is accomplished — the fine art of learning. Through the natural, relaxed togetherness of faculty, staff, and the student populous, an atmosphere in which 'learning is fun' is established.

Heather Mann and Cheri Smith in Mr. Houghton's physics class carefully balance a meter stick for another experiment.

. . . WITH COMPETITION

Sonal Tejani leads the pack as Crissy Overton follows close behind.

J.V. football players practice blocking procedures.

Competition is that driving force that causes us to exceed not only the expectation of others, but also ourselves.

Clover Hill students take pride in their competitive spirit. Whether striving for the best academic standing in one's class, teaming up with other students to take honors in Battle of the Brains and Virginia Math League activities, or on the playing field, Clover Hill students excell.

Good sportsmanship in the midst of contest makes Clover Hill sports an activity to be supported and respected. While each athlete strives to attain personal goals, these individual honors are cheerfully sacrificed for the team effort. Sports at Clover Hill involve more than just athletes, coaches, and managers. The student body and other spectators become an integral part of each contest.

Competition at Clover Hill very often takes the form of good-natured rivalry among homeroom, clubs, and organizations in float decoration at homecoming, fund-raisers, or just plain old school spirit. The various groups vying for whatever bragging rights are at stake create a sense of comaraderie among all students, showing that in competition we are all together.

. . . WITH SPIRIT

A Cavalier tradition, the 1985 Homecoming bonfire was a spirit-lifting event.

Ms. Cifelli, the Senior Class Sponsor, shows her class spirit by accepting a pie from the generous Senior Class President Tener Williams.

Rising Enthusiasm Brought By "Winds Of Change"

This year at Clover Hill an increase in school spirit has brought about many changes which include the official installation of Clover Hill's first male cheerleaders and record turnouts at sporting events. Spirit was heightened due to reestablishment of the once nonexistent Pep Club. Through the efforts of this group a section of stands was filled, standing and cheering at all games promoting the general spirit.

However, here at Clover Hill the meaning of the word spirit goes beyond simply participating in pep rallies or cheering the team to victory. We also exhibit spirit as we strive to make our school environment the best it can be. This school year with the enthusiastic help of the two new administrators, Principal Doctor Vorhauer and Vice Principal Mrs. Wilson, the pride in our school has returned. This can be seen in the efforts to improve the appearance of the school, from new landscaping to ridding the commons of all trash during lunchtime.

Yes, it is evident here at Clover Hill that we are together in spirit.

The Cavalier pride that Dr. Vorhauer has evoked has been greatly appreciated by the student body.

Ms. Cifelli and the VICA club welcome teachers and administrators to school.

Students show their spirit whenever and however possible.

Clover Hill's Varsity Cheerleaders cheer the team to victory.

. . . Providing Us With a Fun-Filled Week!

Spirit Week took place from Monday, October 13, to Saturday, October 18. This annual event is used to boost the school's spirit and the morale of the football team, who will lead us to a victorious game that Friday night. Each day of the week, the student body dressed in specific attire. The costumes were so outrageous that if a visitor had been in the building he would have thought Clover Hill is very unusual.

The annual class distinction day was held Thursday. Freshmen were supposed to be "Little Rascals." Of those who dressed, most came as Buckwheat, Darla, or Alfalfa. Having the easiest job, all the sophomores had to do was leave home in the morning because it was Pajama Day for them. Juniors were to imitate the Nerds they had seen during their lives. As tradition dictates, Seniors wore togas and sun glasses to show their spirit. Many students turned out for the Thursday night activities. First, there was the Girls' Basketball game against L. C. Bird Skyhawks. After a long and hard struggle the Lady Cavs lost 55 to 44. After the game, students rushed to the bonfire. Here, the SCA class representatives threw dummies resembling our opponents into the flames. The crowd proved that spirit would be high at the game.

Friday, we were on an activity schedule in order to have a pep rally during the last fifty minutes of school. Students, faculty, and alumni alike watched as many exciting and new events took place. For the first time, the J.V. and Varsity Cheerleaders performed with the Cavalettes for one number. To add to the new events, the first Faculty Royal Court was announced. The members led by the king, Dr. Vorhauer, included Math teachers Mr. Johns and Mrs. Bowman, Social Studies teachers Mrs. Snidow and Mr. Strickland, English teachers Mr. Ferguson and Mrs. Harris, Science teacher Mr. Rice, and French teacher Ms. Moore.

Throughout the week, students were preparing for many contests. Friday afternoon brought an end to the hall decorating contest when the Sophomore hall and its "Rock Around The Clock" theme was announced the victor. This added to the class's win in the dummy contest. Spirit had reached fever pitch by this time.

The Cavalettes join the J.V. and Varsity Cheerleaders to raise the student body's morale.

HOMECOMING FINALE

Fans welcome Clover Hill's varsity football team and cheer them to victory.

Sophomores Chris Goodman, Pete Mavromatis, and Brian Anderson celebrate by attending the game and showing support for their team on this victorious evening.

Along with their victories in the contests for best hall decorations and bonfire dummies, the Sophomore Class Council took top honors in the homecoming parade with their theme "Sophomores Rock."

A WEEKEND FOR WINNERS!

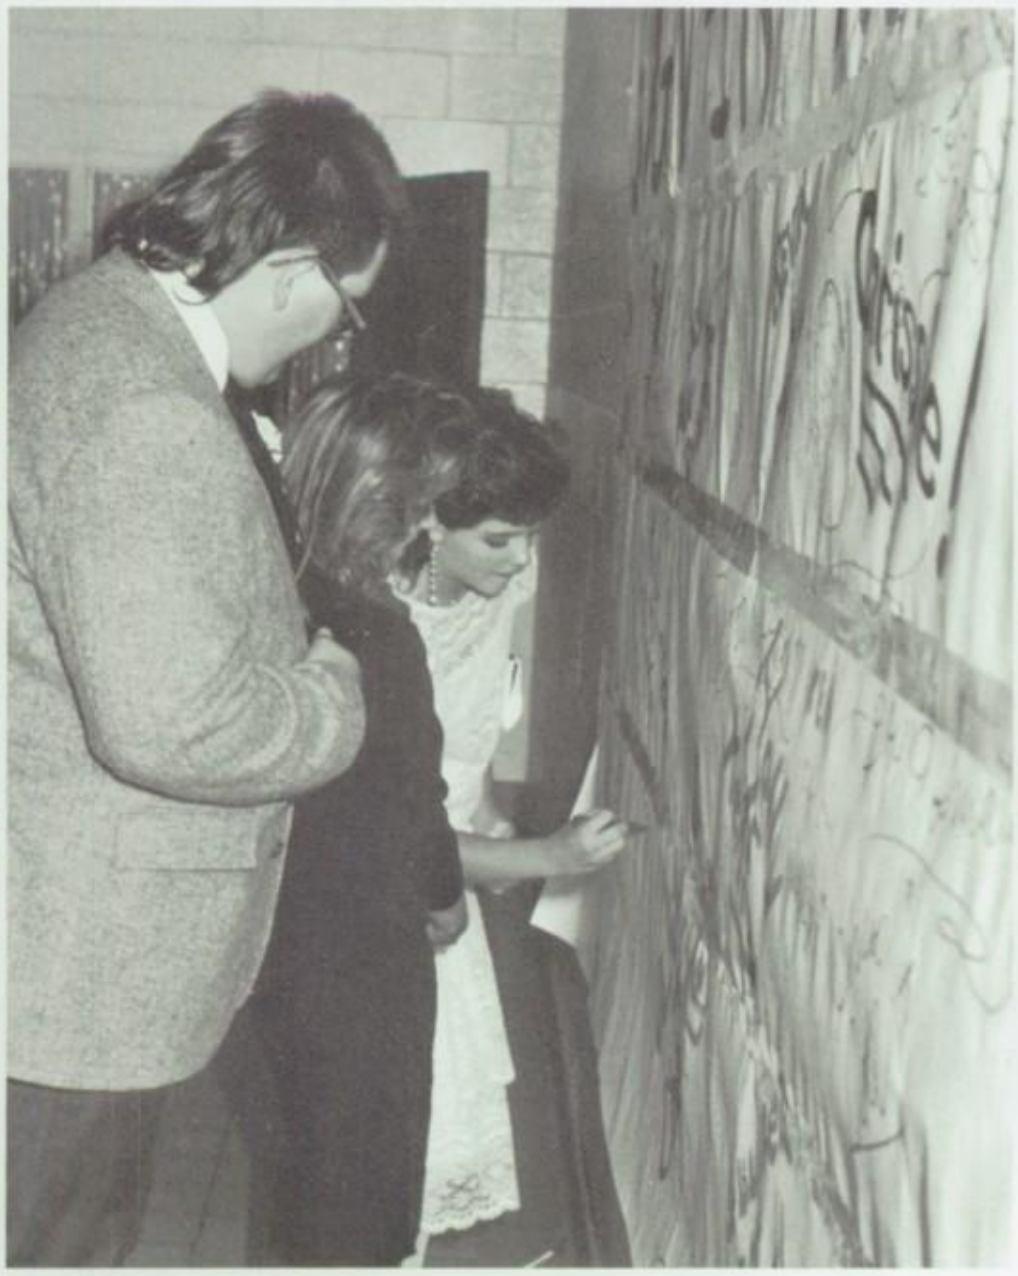
The finale of Clover Hill's 1985-86 Homecoming Week was full of celebration and hope for the future. The weekend's festivities began Friday night at the varsity football game where members of various clubs presented floats which were judged on the basis of spirit and effort. Honorable mention went to the Drama Club with their death scene and the Chess Club who acted as walking chess pieces. The German Club with their theme "Even the Wildest Animals are tamed!" took third place. Second place was awarded to the Spanish Club for their float which featured a moving windmill made of flowers. The Sophomore Class Council captured top honors in the homecoming competition by winning the contest with their float entitled "Winds of Change Determine Your Fate, Rock with the Class of '88" which demonstrated the changes in music over the years.

The night continued with the recognition of the Homecoming Court of 1985. The Freshman class was represented by Princess Kelly Zacharias, Duchess Cindy Easterling, and Prince Adam Shoemaker. Princess Callie Householder, Duchess Lee Graham, and Prince L. P. Holt were the Sophomore's addition to the court, while Princess Jill Hartnett, Duchess Sandi Hodges, and Prince Robert Whitfield were elected by the Juniors. Senior Princesses included Vickie Baughan, Laura Copp and Jenny Hopkins. The high point of the ceremony was the announcement and crowning of Barbie Martin as Homecoming Queen with Tracy Yeatts as the Maid of Honor.

The conclusion of the week was the Homecoming Dance on Saturday night. The S.C.A., who sponsored the festivities, also decorated the cafeteria which became a beach for the night. "The Reunion" provided most of the music, but they were minus a lead singer. Many students, including Seniors Matt St. Louis and Tim Mullins and Sophomore David Young, took over the responsibility and continued the fun. During the dance, Barry Blalock, Mark Hensley, and Mark York, the Senior Princes, were introduced, and Sparky Dodson was crowned King.

With the varsity's 21-0 victory over the Meadowbrook Monarchs, the school and its many winners had much to celebrate as "The Winds of Change" continued to carry them to the future.



Junior Todd Crostic, Kristi Morano, and Sophomore Darlene Knight inscribe their names on the Homecoming banner along with others attending the dance.

Jan Copley returns to her alma mater to crown Barbie Martin, Homecoming Queen of 1985-86.

Ring Ceremony Worth the Wait

After his long wait this Junior checks the spelling of his name as he awaits the conclusion of the ceremony.

The nighttime celebration becomes a success

On the evening of October 2, almost the entire junior class, 349 students, came back to school to receive their class rings. The class ring to the Juniors is the symbol of their status as upperclassmen.

The ceremony was presented by the Senior Class and their sponsor, Ms. Ann Cifelli, and rings were presented by the class officers, Class Sponsor Mrs. Snidow, and Dr. Roy Vorhauer.

The Juniors had been awaiting this moment with eager anticipation ever since they placed their order at the beginning of their Sophomore year.

The reception after the ceremony was given by the seniors. The cakes were delicious and a very attractive sight. The evening's excitement was soon over, but the memories will long remain with the Class of 1987.

Mrs. Snidow, Dr. Vorhauer, and the Senior and Junior class officers, Melissa Rider, Stacey Evins, Chip Crostic, Tener Williams, Jenny Hopkins, Shannon Thorton, Wayne Lee, and Robert Whitfield stand to announce the commencement of the Ring Ceremony.

. . . Along with a time change

This year's Powder Puff football game was one which not only set a precedent but continued a tradition. The male cheerleaders were brought back, and the Seniors defeated the Juniors with a 14-0 victory.

This 1985 game was one of high intensity and enthusiasm. The male cheerleaders helped in promoting this attitude among both the crowd and the players. One example of this spirit was seen when the Senior cheerleaders made their grand entrance in the form of a parade carrying a banner with the letters 'Kill Juniors'.

The touchdowns by the senior team were made by defensive linebackers Debbie Emmerling and Candace Neff. Both touchdowns were made after offensive passes by the Junior team were intercepted.

Both teams can be characterized as having strong defenses; the Juniors because of their running ability and the Seniors because of their size. Offensively, there was a difference. The inflexible Juniors kept throwing the ball even after their passes were intercepted. At the start of the game the Seniors passed the ball, but because of ineffectiveness they decided to alter their plays to running the ball.

The future of the traditional Powder Puff game looks bright as sportsmanship, leadership, spirit, and the thrill of competition between classes brings us all together.

'Cause I'm Woooman . . .', croons Senior cheerleader Andy Smith.

Senior Janet Holt runs the ball as Heather Hatch covers her.

During the second half, the senior offense congratulates the defense after their second touchdown.

Cavs Look FANTASTIC for Fall . . .

"Fashion's Gift to You" was the theme of the Winter Fashion show held on December 5, 1985 in the commons. The runway was decked with green garland, red bows, Christmas wreaths, and brightly wrapped packages. Students modelled sweat suits, pants, skirts, sweaters, dresses, suits, and winter coats. The girls' outfits were provided by Hit or Miss, and JCPenny supplied the guys' fashions. Music for the show included popular songs by Klimaxx, Eddie Murphy, and Kool and the Gang. Randi O'Neal danced at the beginning of the show, and Becky Angus was the commentator for the fashion show. The following Fashion and Merchandising students modelled: Natalie Baker, Kristen Carpenter, Michelle Durham, Jimmy Golden, Paul Holzbach, Derek Hubbard, Jimmy Jenkins, Wendy Lodge, Cheryl McChargue, Tanya Moseley, Abbie Meltzer, Angie Newman, Gary Ragan, Kris Riley, Ricky Shires, Debbie Snead, Sandy Sviontek, Brian Turner, Tonya Tutton, Fiona van den Niewenhuizen, Dana Warfield, Jason Walker, Tonya Williams, Melissa Wright, and Kerri Young.

. . . and SPECTACULAR for Spring

The 1986 Spring Fashion Show was held on March 21. The show's theme was "Moments to Remember." Featuring Prom and After-prom clothing, the Fashion Show promoted current trends in formal wear and ladies' dresses. The guys modelled the latest tuxedos from The Groom's Corner. Bridal Designs provided prom wear in dramatic colors and ever-popular pastels, and JCPenney furnished dresses and suits for some after-prom looks. The stage was skirted with royal blue paper a-glitter with silver stars. Silver moons and stars hung over the runway decorating the "heavenly" backdrop. Angie Newman opened the show with a jazz dance routine, and Dana Warfield was commentator for the show. Popular music by Patti Austin, Atlantic Star, Lover Boy, and a duet by Mike Reno and Ann Wilson was used to set the atmosphere. These Fashion Merchandising and Marketing students modelled: Becky Angus, Maria Biggers, Terri Cook, Lisa Dean, Terri Elks, Paige Ergenbright, Jimmy Golden, Heather Hatch, Cele Holden, Paul Holtzbach, Becky Houseman, Derek Hubbard, Jimmy Jenkins, Cyndy Knuth, Tracy Oliver, Randi O'Neal, Sheri Pritchett, Gary Ragan, Kim Scott, Ricky Shires, Amy Sinks, Dawn Robbins, Brian Turner, Aliza Tripp, Jason Walker, Cindy Williams, and Tonya Wilson.

Junior Jason Walker is smooth and debonair.

FOREIGN
Around the World

Die Woche der Fremdsprachen

The Clover Hill High School Foreign Language Department held its annual celebration of National Foreign Language Week March 3-7. It was a week full of tradition and changes for the French, German, Latin, and Spanish students. On Monday, students followed tradition and wore the colors representing the language they studied. During class on this day, the students made paper replicas of the flag their clothes imitated to hang on the outside of their locker. The annual Class Exchange Day was held Tuesday when students were exposed to a language they were not taking. To add more excitement to the week, French classes were shown "Diabolique" with English subtitles, while the Spanish aficionados watched the Spanish version of "Star Wars." German students screened "Night Crossing," and "Spartacus" was viewed by the Latin Students.

The highlight of the week was the Foreign Language Covered Dish Banquet held on Thursday in the Commons. Each guest and his family was asked to bring a foreign dish, and a few were asked to participate in one of the folk dances from one of these nations. Friday was Teacher Appreciation Day, used to thank the faculty for their participation during the entire week.

During the previous week, each language club planned and prepared decorations to represent their club in one of the halls of the school, which would promote the Foreign Language Week's activities. Volleyball games were added Monday and Friday to increase friendly competition through the year. The entire week was enjoyable and entertaining to everyone in the school and will provide tradition for future Clover Hill language students.

As a member of the German Club, Sophomore Jill Aitkinnaus spends several hours after school preparing hallway decorations.

FACULTY HELPS WITH

The Jocks

On Wednesday, May 14, 1986, the student body arrived at school awaiting the Upstairs-Downstairs softball game. During homeroom, an announcement came over the loud speakers which stated that it would be postponed due to rain. The following Wednesday became the rain date, but the weather would not let up. The quick-thinking faculty had decided to hold a volleyball game rather than wait another week.

Each student paid the admission of fifty cents which was his ticket to leave his sixth period and enter the gym. Within the gym walls, students found teachers preparing to go head to head in "friendly" competition between the upstairs faculty members and their downstairs counterparts. Teachers from almost every department served, spiked, hit, and missed the ball during several sets of this ever-popular game. The Upstairs fought strong and hard but were unable to top the Downstairs experience. The proceeds for this fund-raiser were contributed towards the faculty scholarship.

Gym teachers, Cla Meredith and Willie O'Brien, assist each other in getting the ball over the net.

The fantastic serve by Science teacher, Sherri Green, makes her look like a California gal.

Is this Mikhail Baryshnikov? No, it's Coach Tom Carter using style and finesse in his serve.

Coach Lisa Bradshaw puts all her strength into returning the ball.

The Brains

Do you know who Henry VIII's second wife was or what movie won the first Academy Award for best picture? These were two questions of the many asked during Clover Hill's first Battle of the Brains competition pitting faculty members against the student team.

Tickets for the event were sold for fity cents by members of the NHS during homeroom and enabled students to leave their second period class on Friday, May 30. In the auditorium, the festivities began with a welcoming speech by SCA President Ken Ekers and the reading of the rules by NHS sponsor Mrs. Robbie Williams. Mrs. Williams also introduced the special guest host, Dr. Larry Elliott of Chesterfield County Schools. As host, his duties were to read the questions to the participants. The competitors on the student team were the members of the Battle of the Brains team — Senior Aaron Gillespie and Juniors Jeff Creamer, David Stevens, and Chris Mullins. The faculty team consisted of Physics teacher Mr. Harold Houghton, Principal Dr. Roy Vorhauer, Drama and English teacher Mrs. Lynne Scott, and government teacher, Mr. Bill Pritchett. Beginning with the first question, the student team had the lead and never gave it up. The battle ended with the score of students — 350 and faculty — 285.

Sponsor Robbie Williams thanks the audience for their contribution to the NHS school improvement plan.

Juniors Jeff Creamer, David Stephens, and Chris Mullins listen to Aaron Gillespie and hope for a correct answer.

Guest Quiz Master, Dr. Elliott, awaits the answer to the question, "What is the capital of New Zealand?"

As Mrs. Scott yells, "No!! it's Wadsworth not Longworth!," the male members of the faculty team, Mr. Houston, Dr. Vorhauer, and Mr. Pritchett burst out laughing.

Model Congress

On March 14 and 15 of 1986 eight Clover Hill High School government students, chaperoned by Mr. Bill Pritchett, attended the 10th Annual Model Congress at Richard Bland College. Valerie Jinnette and David Mann were chosen as members of the Senate, and the House of Representatives included Tim Dodd, John Edmondson, Julie Gobble, Bryan Harvey, Chuck Piotrowski, and Jeff Taylor. From various parts of Virginia, students came to take part in this event. All participants served on committees, including the Ways and Means, Foreign Affairs, Defense, and Appropriations. In the weeks that preceded Model Congress, Clover Hill prepared eight bills to be voted on in committee and in each house. Chuck Piotrowski, a junior, sponsored a bill dealing with the establishment of a national lottery. His performance on the house floor was very impressive and helped his bill pass in both the House and Senate. Senior Tim Dodd's bill to abolish affirmative action also passed in both houses. A rather unique but necessary bill was sponsored by Seniors Julie Gobble and Valerie Jinnette. Dealing with the requirement of trucks carrying loose material to be covered, the bill passed without much debate in both houses. A bill introduced by Valerie Jinnette requiring the Congressional Record to be a verbatim account of statement from the floor of Congress passed the Senate. Additional bills presented by Clover Hill students included regulation of interest rates on credit cards by Senior David Mann, limited abortion by Senior Jeff Taylor, reconstruction of the system by Senior John Edmondson, and an increased tax on tobacco products by Senior Bryan Harvey. At the concluding ceremonies Saturday Julie Gobble won an Honorable Mention award for her performance.

Programs such as Model Congress allow students to meet people from other schools, as was the case for Senior Valerie Jinnette, who became friends with Rusty Simmons of Richard Bland.

Model County Government

On April 30, 1986, eight Clover Hill senior government students and Social Studies teacher Mr. Barham participated in Model County Government Day for Chesterfield County. Carefully selected by a panel of teachers, these students assumed for a day the role of an official of Chesterfield County. Each student was required to attend two training sessions before the actual proceedings. During the second training session, students attended a meeting of the Board of Supervisors and a meeting of the School Board. Also on that date, each student interviewed his or her respective official.

Model County Government Day began with a short welcome by School Superintendent Dr. Howard Sullins and a tour of the Chesterfield Technical Center. Afterwards, each student participated in various activities of his or her official. After a luncheon at the Technical Center, all of the students attended a mock School Board meeting and a mock Board of Supervisors meeting which was presided over by Valerie Jinnette of Clover Hill.

The students from Clover Hill held various positions. Ken Ekers became a member of the School Board, while Bryan Harvey was the Director of Secondary Instruction. Janet Holt held the post of Director of General Services. Clover Hill's representative to the Board of Supervisors was Valerie Jinnette, and Mark Livingston was named the Director of Budget and Accounting. Serving as Sheriff was David Mann, filling in for the Airport Director was Bryan Patrick, and Wayne Vaughan had the job of the Director of Federal Programs. During this learning experience, all of these students were given the chance to experience first-hand the inner workings of Chesterfield County Government.

Senior Bryan Harvey, Director of Secondary Education, was asked to speak during one of the many meetings.

Tying the Knot

The auditorium was filled to capacity for the 1986 mock wedding of Heather Hatch to Chris Conner.

This year it took place on Tuesday, March 18, during fourth period. A tremendous amount of time went into planning this activity. The four Family Living classes were divided into eight committees. The chairpersons of these committees were Ann Marie Brame, Michelle Stokes, Angela Chancellor, Toni Winder, Trude Tiller, Tammy Boyd, Mike Walton, and Vickie Baughan. The catering class was responsible for the entire reception.

The wedding party was from the Family Living classes. Two girls and two guys were chosen from each class. These names were put on a ballot to choose the bride and groom.

Other participants were Jeff Taylor and Cathy Carpenter, the bride's parents, and Cindy Williams and Andy Smith, the groom's parents. The mock ministers were Sparky Dodson and Paul Hutchinson. Stacey Evins and Susan Sobrito were the mistresses of ceremonies. Piano music was played by Bryan Pittenger. During the lighting of the unity candle, Angela Chancellor and Jeff Taylor sang a duet.

Special thanks must go to Janis Bean and Francis Gordon, the Family Living teachers, and also to Matt Vance, Brauderick's Flower and Gift Shop, Bridal Designs, Groom's Corner, and Strange's Florist.

ASSEMBLIES

Just when the week is getting boring, news rapidly spreads around school that there is going to be an assembly. The first questions are when and during what period(s)? The answers could be anytime Monday through Friday and during any of the six periods. Then when the shock disappears, you begin to ask about the content of the assembly. This could be anything "under the rainbow."

During National Vocational Week Clover Hill students were given the opportunity to hear Bob Moore speak. Mr. Moore told students stories about inspirational people like Abraham Lincoln and Lucille Ball who both fought long and hard to obtain their dreams.

Throughout the year, many concerts were offered to the student body. The Clover Hill Choruses presented both a winter and a spring concert. The bands and orchestras, also, participated in several assemblies. Several visiting musical guests showed their musical talents to the student body. The University of Richmond's band performed for the audience several instrumental numbers. To give the Cavaliers another sample of their peers' talents a group of high school students from Ohio sang a variety of popular songs.

The concert that will be remembered most was kept a secret. On the day of the concert, all students were told was that we were on assembly schedule. The surprise was a rock concert; Can you believe it? The group from Miami was known as Free Fare and played several Top 40 songs, like "Say You, Say Me" and "Never Surrender." They also kidnapped some students and faculty members to help them act out their version of "Star Wars." Free Fare presented a concert after schoolPto a large crowd seeking to hear more.

There was, also, a large number of the annual assemblies. As in the past, the candidates for SCA and class council offices gave campaign speeches during assemblies. Later, the winners were installed inPfront of the student body. Students who excelled in their school work during the year were honored in front of the classes.H

These meetings not only offered students a change from the daily routine, but added excitement and/or culture to the student body.

On their Spring Break, a touring high school chorus from Ohio performed for Clover Hill students.

Lead vocalist for Free Fare, Danny Moore, helped Senior Matt St. Louis and math teacher Wes Chidress (Alias Marshall Pearman of the Home Ec Department) perform the band's version of "Star Wars" during the free concert provided by the SCA.

PROJECTS

The most annoying words to any student are " . . . and this is due . . .," and during the year, they are bound to be heard at least once in every class. The mentioning of the words term paper causes more moans and groans than any other assignment. In many classes, especially English, these papers are requirements.

To add a bit of change to the everyday assignment, teachers often require projects to be done. Some teachers ask students to verbally present ideas to the class. Oral book reports give students the opportunity to listen to others' opinions and receive ideas for future books to read. Teaching class, as in current events, gives students the opportunity to experience the teacher's job and the chance to listen to someone other than the teacher. Practicums are requirements for all honors foreign language students and offer students a chance to use the language they are learning.

Projects are often used as aids in decorating the room. Specific examples include the Earth Science classes' time lines which show the growth of the world during certain eras, and activities including the preparation of bulletin boards to represent a topic a class is studying.

Some projects have become Clover Hill traditions. The Geometry classes celebrate the arrival of spring annually with the preparing of Easter hats, which are actually several geometric shapes joined together. The Family Living classes have the responsibility of the decorating and caring for Egg Babies. Some Physics students are haunted for years by their project to build a working motor.

In art classes, the student's projects are the major portion of his grade. Home Economics students' "projects" are made on stove tops and ovens. Science classes involve many extra experiments, including counting fruit flies and the mixing of several substances.

As any person can see, class projects are a major portion of a student's education. We all enjoy witnessing others' works, and to a certain extent the challenge of preparing these projects. Thus, the words ". . . and this is due . . .," do cause immediate panic, but after a while they do become interesting, fun, and educational (but not necessarily in that order.)

Senior Marie Southers and Junior Ginger Gill become volunteers for an Advanced Biology project, testing for the genes for food preferences.

The brilliance of senior government students can be seen on bulletin boards, such as Matt St. Louis' multicolored design of the names of the Supreme Court justices.

During the year, newspapers were filled with stories that shocked, tickled, amazed, and inspired readers. Politically speaking it was definitely a year to remember. President Ronald Reagan began the secondyear of his second term, and Vice-President George Bush became our nation's leader for eight hours during Reagan's operation. For most Virginians, though, the 1985 state elections are what will be remembered most. Gerald Baliles was elected Governor. J. Douglas Wilder became the first Black to be elected Lt. Governor, and Mary Sue Terry was the first woman to become Attorney General.

This year, also, marked the United States' increased diplomatic ties with Great Britain and the Soviet Union. The royal couple, Prince Charles and Princess Diana, visited the U.S. with a side trip to a Virginia JCPenney. An eleven year old Soviet girl, KaterinaP"Katya" Lycheva came to ask for peace and honor her American counterpart, Samantha Smith, who died in a plane crash in 1985.

Blacks in South Africa rioted in the hopes that the minocity White government would end apartheid. Due to a large number of violent protests in the Philippines, Ferdinand Marcos was forced to flee the country when the people chose Corazon Aquino as theirPleader. The Contras in Nicaragua continued their cause, and the controversy grew in Congress concerning U.S. aid to these rebels. Foreign objects were found in household products such as baby food, bubble gum, cereal, and pain relievers after victims became ill or died. At home, the sky rocketing murder rate made Richmond notorious as the city with the highest murder rate. Americans were shocked at the hijackingPof the cruise ship Achille Lauro, several planes, and the intentional murder of many civilians.

1985/86 was the year people became more aware of deadly diseases. President Reagan's cancer operation influenced many to visit the doctor for long-overdue checkups. The deaths of RockPHudson and 15,000 others from Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome (AIDS) created the biggest scare of the year.

Several disasters shocked the world, such as the Mexican earthquake and Puerto Rican mudslide. Disasters hit closer to home when several hurricanes hit the Gulf Coast, andPwhenPRichmond was threatened by the flooding of the James River. The most publicized and terrifying story came from the Soviet Union when there was an accident at the nuclear power plant in Chernobyl, and a chemical fire spread a cloud of radiation throughout Europe.

The 1985-86 news was not always depressing,Phowever. Richmond experienced a large number of renovations which included the addition of the 6th Street Marketplace and Main Street Station. Gasoline prices fell sharply. The endless saga about Coca-Cola's formula continued to confuse the world: First, there was Coke, then the new Coke, and finally both "New" and "Classic" Coke.

The discovery of the year has to be that ofPthe long-lost Titanic. The French-U.S. expedition found this wreckage off the coast of Canada. The arrival of Halley's Comet gave the world a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity.

The most tragic and probably the most memorable story was that of the explosion of the Challenger and thePdeaths of the seven American astronauts aboard. On Tuesday, January 28, 1986, the news spread rapidly around the world as a scene of smoke and flames flew where the Challenger had flown seconds before. The astronauts aboard were Francis Scobee, Michael Smith, Judith Resnick, Ronald McNairs, Ellison Onizuka, Gregory Jarvis, and the first civilian member of an expedition, New Hampshire school teacher Christa McAuliffe.

The sporting world, as usual, was full of excitement during 1985-86. In July, a seventeen year old West German, Boris Becker, became the youngest player to ever win the Wimbleton men's singles title. Ty Cobb's major league record of career hits was broken by Pete Rose of the Cincinnati Reds when he earned his 4,192nd hit on September 11. The Kansas City Royals won the World Series over the St. Louis Cardinals four games to three. Football was dominated by the Chicago Bears, who won 15 of 16 regular season games, and took Super Bowl XX with the most one-sided victory in history, 46-10, over the New England Patriots. The Bears could also boast the most visible player of the year, William "Refrigerator" Perry, who became one of the year's biggest sports heroes. Hockey's biggest award, the Stanley Cup, was won by the Montreal Canadiens over the Calgary Flames. The Boston Celtics defeated the Houston Rockets in the NBA's championship series. Meanwhile, Hulk Hogan and Rowdy Ronnie Piper became household names and professional wrestling gained a larger audience.

The entertainment industry continued its "year of giving" during 1985 and started a new one in 1986. After the success of Band Aid and USA for Africa, many celebrities became interested in helping the less fortunate. Bob Geldorf organized Live Aid, a day long concert that would raise money for the starving in Ethiopia. This benefit was held on Saturday, July 13, 1985 and became the biggest rock concert in history. Performers in both London, England and Philadelphia, Pennsylvania were seen live world-wide by more than 1.5 billion people. During his performance, Bob Dylan, a 60's great, commented that some of the money should go to aid the suffering American farmers. Country singer Willie Nelson heard this and soon organized Farm Aid, which was held in Champaign, Illinois, on Sunday, September 22. On Sunday, May 25, everyone from the President to the homeless held hands forming a chain from California to New York. "Hands Across America," as it was called, was held to raise awareness and money for the poor in America. This was only the beginning of the charitable acts by members of the entertainment industry.

The big successes of the motion picture industry were the comedies, such as "Back to the Future," "Wild Cats," "Down and Out in Beverly Hills," and two sequels "Police Academy III" and "The Jewel of the Nile." Violent movies became big box office draws, also. Sylvester Stallone seemed to be the biggest star with "Rambo: First Blood Part II" and "Rocky IV" which were only topped by "Back to the Future" for top grossing films of 1985. Two films, "Color Purple" and "Out of Africa," accomplished the feat rarely conquered now — becoming both a commercial and critical hit. As the school year ended, it seemed that "Top Gun" would become a big success. Along with Stallone top box draws included Michael Douglas, Eddie Murphy, Harrison Ford, Kathleen Turner, Meryl Streep, Sally Field, and Goldie Hawn, as well as newcomers Michael J. Fox and Whoopi Goldberg.

The big news in the music industry was the fight between a group of concerned parents against the artists and record companies that went to the United States Senate. The parents wanted to have records rated according to the content of its lyrics. The case was settled with a compromise which stated that records, albums, and tapes with explicit lyrics would have that printed on the cover. Bruce Springsteen and his "Born in the U.S.A." album were the successes of the year. British artists Phil Collins, Wham!, and Dire Straits also continued their success. Country music was dominated by such artists as Alabama, Lee Greenwood, the Judds, Reba McEntire, and George Strait. Whitney Houston's debut album went quadruple platinum and drew enough success for her to be called the "Newcomer of the Year" by most critics. Others to burst onto the scene were a-ha, Julian Lennon, and Sade, while the comebacks of the year have to include Aretha Franklin, James Brown, Dionne Warwick, The Commodores, and Starship.

Television was again dominated by Bill Cosby. "The Cosby Show" held the top spot throughout the year and helped NBC reign as the top network. Comedies dominated the popularity list for the first time in many years. "Cheers," "Family Ties," "Kate and Allie," "Newhart," "Night Court," and "Who's the Boss" were the most popular. Such shows as "Miami Vice," "Murder She Wrote," and the prime time soaps, "Dallas," "Dynasty," and "Knots Landing" were the top dramatic series. Several new series, including "Moonlighting," "The Golden Girls," "Growing Pains," and "The Colbys," seemed to have great futures ahead of them. Mini-series again drew large audiences, especially "Sins," "North and South," and "North and South Book II." The most popular television stars included Cosby, Don Johnson, Linda Evans, Joan Collins, Cybill Shepherd and newcomer Bruce Willis.

Other entertainment was found in the increasingly popular medium of music videos. Millions and millions of dollars were spent and raised by artists who worked with videos. MTV, as in previous years, was one of the attractions of teenagers. The Video Cassette Recorder (VCR) found even greater success in 1985-86. It was predicted that in a few years almost every home would have at least one of these contraptions.

Cavalier

The successful 1985-86 season of the Cavalier Players is due to the dedication of the students and the boundless energy and enthusiasm of Mrs. Scott, a Clover Hill English teacher, who is both the instructor and the driving force behind the scenes. Up to three months before a production, Mrs. Scott spends two to four hours a day after school. Mrs. Scott's titles range from casting director to director to stage designer to make-up expert to costume coordinator and to lighting specialist. After hectic months spent in endless rehearsals, the Cavalier Players are at last ready to go on stage. On opening night last minute details are tended to. The scenery is checked over and the lights are tested one more time. The cast is hastily running over their lines in a last effort to combat the inevitable butterflies caused by stage fright. The refreshments are prepared . . . the lights are dimmed, the audience is silent.

The 1985-86 season opened in January with the production of "The Lottery" and "The Diary of Adam and Eve." "The Lottery" is a short story written by Shirley Jackson. "The Lottery" is held annually by the village in order to ensure good crops. The suspense mounts as the villagers slowly gather in the village square. Children who were noisily playing with rocks and pebbles become silent and stand with their families when Joe Summers (Jeff Ramsey) arrives. The strange silence and unease of the villagers are broken by the late arrival of the absent-minded Tessie Hutchinson (Mori Hannah). Names are called, chips are drawn, and Tessie "wins" the prize of the lottery; death by stoning. "The Diary of Adam and Eve", on the otherhand, is a light-hearted look at the lives of the world's first couple. Jennifer Strugar portrayed the addle-brained Eve, who lectures Adam about grammar and names all the animals. Adam, played by Breck Caine, constantly dodges Eve and prefers his shelter to her company. Julie Gobble, as the serpent, tempted both Adam and Eve with the apple. Eventually they work out their differences and attempt to live "happily ever after."

The second production in May was of Neil Simon's uproarious comedy, Come Blow Your Horn. Alan Baker, played by Senior Matt Vance, led the idyllic bachelor existence until his brother arrived unexpectedly at his penthouse apartment. Alan Baker's life is thrown into a frenzy when he learns that his younger brother (John Anderson) has run away from home, a forgotten business client is due in town and wants a "party", his girlfriend (Mori Hannah) wants either to marry him or move in with him, his "weekend girl" (Jennifer Rayfield) is due to arrive at any minute, his tyrannical boss/father (Monte Haught) is on the warpath, and his hysterical mother (Julie Stokes) keeps babbling about missing pencils, Alka-Seltzer, and roast beef sandwiches. As you can well imagine, this Cavalier production keeps the audience in stitches.

The curtain falls and the house lights come up. The audience files slowly out talking excitedly about the excellence of the performance. After changing out of costumes and make-up, the tired cast gathers briefly to congratulate themselves on a job well done. Then it's off to the cast party!

A STARRY STARRY NIGHT

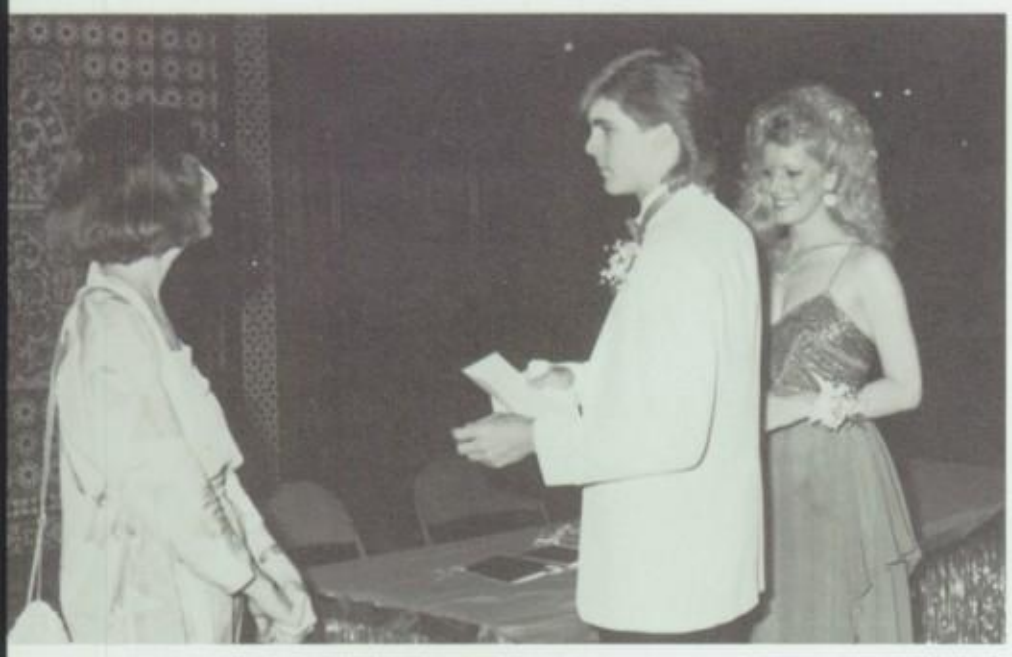
Who would have known that such a hectic, hot, and sunny day would become a "Starry, Starry Night?" When we took a moment to breathe on the way to the Mosque, we thought back to all the preparations involved in this important evening. When Saturday, May 31, finally arrived, we were all too busy to think. Guys had to pick up their tuxedos, while girls made sure their dresses fit. We had to find our invitation and get finances straight. Finally, it was time to shower and dress. When we met our date, our parents had to take several hundred photos, before we could finally go to dinner.

We were given a program as we entered the ballroom, which was decorated with silver, star-shaped helium balloons. On the dance floor, we danced to the music of the Mirrors, and talked to all of our friends. Junior Class Sponsor Mrs. Puck Snidow introduced the Junior Court — Frances Bickford, Jessica Forsyth, Laurie Gable, Jill Hartnett, Wendy Lodge, Scott Boggs, Farren Davis, Bobby Harrison, Chris Mast, and Todd Lampman. Next to be honored was the Senior Court — Vickie Baughan, Jenny Hopkins, Cyndy Knuth, Barbie Martin, Kim Ward, Tracy Yeatts, Roy Clark, Sparky Dodson, Mark Hensley, Butch Leedy, Tim Mullins, and Mark York. Then came the moment we all had waited for when Mark Hensley and Cyndy Knuth were crowned King and Queen. When the prom ended no one wanted to leave, but we all went our separate ways to continue this memorable evening.

All eyes were focused upon Mark Hensley and Cyndy Knuth while they danced as Prom King and Queen.

As she prepares to announce the prom court, Junior Class Sponsor Mrs. Puck Snidow welcomes the guests to Prom '86.



"... What brings us all together is friends."

Chaperone, Mrs. Anne Lambert, welcomes Senior David Glass and his date as he presents his invitation and her guest pass.

Calls like C. J. Renfroe's, "Mom, I'm going to be late," was a common sight.

"We're just talking and enjoying the Mosque's decor." says this innocent couple.

The Mirrors provided the dancing music for Prom '86.

Toga-clad Sparky Dodson and Amy Greer enjoy, along with the other seniors, the privileges and fun that comes with the last year of high school.

The Clover Hill High School Class of 1986 will have a large number of fond memories of our last year in high school. What will we remember? First and foremost we will remember our friends and the good times we shared. Second would be those events that made the year special.

The Class of '86 first felt they were seniors when they took pictures wearing tuxedos and drapes in August. Then there was the list of senior privileges — senior bathrooms, early dismissals to lunch and from school, and especially those senior exam exemptions. In the winter, we ordered caps, gowns, stationery, and memorabilia. On February 19, Clover Hill enjoyed Senior Leadership Day when seniors performed the jobs of the faculty. After Spring Break, we received our caps and gowns, and on April 22, we hiked to the football field to take the class photo in our new green and white attire.

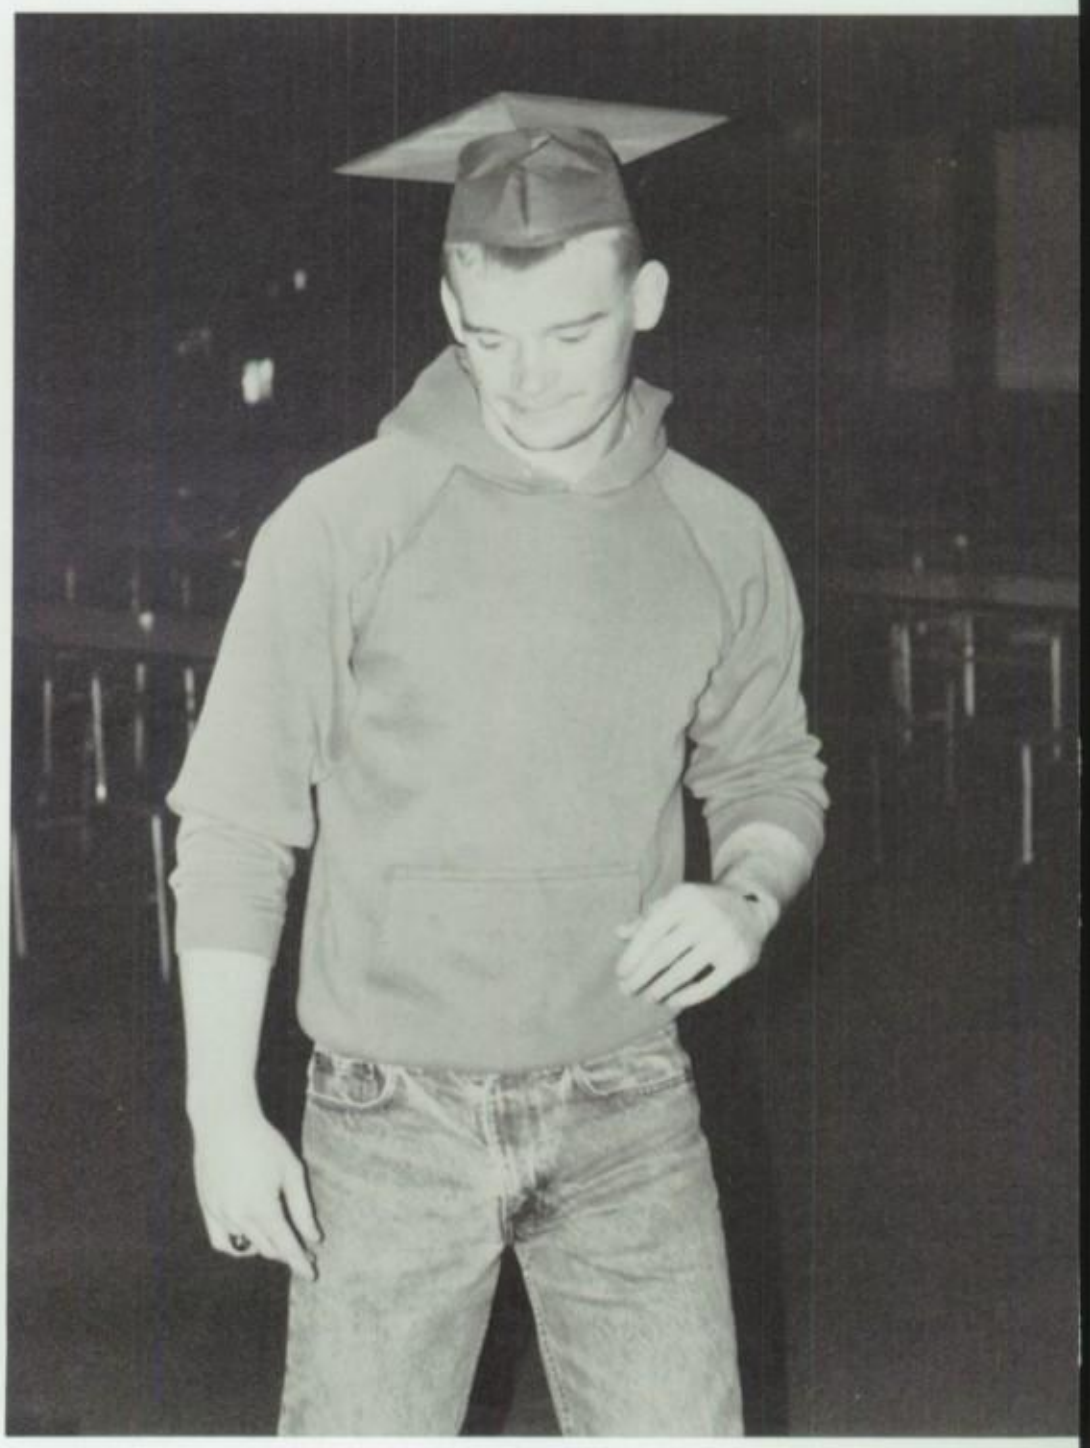
The annual Senior Class Banquet was held on May 1 at D.J.'s where we learned the results of the class balloting for class superlatives. Thursday, May 22, found us in the auditorium for the Senior Awards Assembly and anticipating the class picnic and pool party to follow. The following Saturday, May 31, we dressed in formal attire to dance at the Mosque as we enjoyed the Prom.

Finally, June arrived and with it Baccalaureate and graduation. We all said our good-byes and promised to never lose touch. As we grow older, we will forget some things, but we will never forget our common tie — Clover Hill and the Class of 1986.

Tina Rowsey's smile reflects her anticipation for an excellent senior year.

"Am I ready, or am I READY?!" Chip Lestyk asks as he tries on his new cap.

Talk about taking advantage of the situation — "Principal" Ken Ekers and Mr. David Mann smuggle drinks into a classroom during Senior Leadership Day.

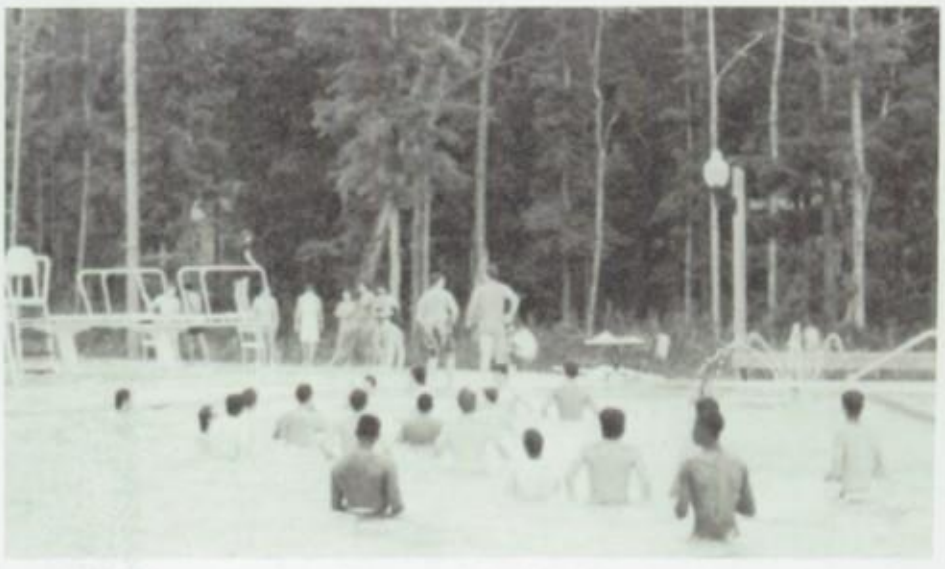


. . . "The Cavalier Spirit which has been rejuvenated by the new administration."
Brenda Perkins
Class of '86

Following the awarding of the Senior Superlatives, Jim Greer, Class Clown and Wittiest, reads his Senior Prophecy to liven up the senior banquet.

Toni Winder, Trude Tiller, Kim Mawyer, and Joe Snellings rush to the bleachers so they too can be part of the class picture.

The auditorium became the scene of the Baccalaureate where the Reverend George A. Fleming presented the sermon, and Linda Taylor performed the class song. "Cherish and Hold," which she wrote for her class.



RIDDLE OF THE DAY: What has over 600 legs, 100 coolers, and more than 1,500 hamburgers and hotdogs?
ANSWER: The Senior Class Picnic

To work off those hamburgers, hot dogs, and potato chips, many members of the senior class dived into St. Ledger Pool for the class pool party.

SENIOR

A hardworking class sponsor, Ann Cifelli, and chaperon, math teacher Wes Childress, await notice that it's time to eat the meal D.J.'s has prepared for the Senior Banquet.

When their assistance was "requested" on Tuesday, June 10, the senior class discovered the answer to the question, "Who sets up the stage and chairs for graduation?"

Class President Tenor Williams makes sure that everything is organized before the stampede of seniors arrives anxious to receive that all important order of "senior stuff."

"No, you cannot do your term paper on the Beatles!" is Mrs. Robbie Williams' response to Brian Connelly's question.

"Norfolk State is the name of a college, but Norfolk is not one of the fifty states," is Ms. Heather Hatch's answer to one of Mrs. Donna Miller's geography students.

Clover Hill's own galloping gourmet, Harold Houghton, was one of the many faculty members to cook the hamburgers and hot dogs for the Senior Picnic.

Loud talking, last minute assistance, and just plain old nerves all occur while seniors await the word that the Baccalaureate service will begin.

Cyndy Knuth's expression asks "How do I get into these situations?" as Jimmy Porter leads her in "a-twisting and a-shouting" to the music of the John Small Band at the Pool Party.

. . . "The people."

After triumphantly throwing them into the air, several boys search on the ground for their caps.

Vicki Womack fights strong gusts of wind, as she delivers her Salutatory speech.

The graduating class of 1986 makes its way to the stadium.

A smiling Marie Southers receives her diploma from Dr. Vorhauer.

"Old and New" — former principal, Dr. Gibson, and current principal, Dr. Vorhauer, share a private joke during the cermeony.

Dr. Vorhauer congratulates Gary Ragan for a job well done by awarding him his diploma.

When the graduates arrived at Clover Hill, many were still yawning and rubbing their eyes sleepily. The reason? Clover Hill held its first midmorning commencement ceremony. The graduates were asked to be at school at 8:30 a.m. in order to prepare for the 10:00 a.m. ceremony. Although some parents showed some skepticism for the early ceremony, stating that many relatives couldn't come so early; the general response was one of enthusiasm. The morning ceremony was intended to allow schools to beat the heat and thunderstorms, while allowing more time to make changes. Few graduates showed anything less than pleasure toward the new arrangement because it allowed them to hit the beach a day sooner.

Michael Adams and Linda Russell enjoy participating in their junior class fund-raiser which will increase the budget for the prom.

JUNIORS

There are many events that students look forward to in their Junior year. The most important is the prestige of upperclassmanship that comes with the arrival of their class rings. Because they are considered upperclassmen, they are allowed participation in such events as PowderPuff and the Junior-Senior Prom. The Junior year in school is the final stepping stone toward Seniorhood and the ultimate goal of graduation.

SOPHOMORES

The greatest event in the life of a Sophomore is the opportunity to learn to drive. Having access to a car allows him much more freedom. Yet, with it comes an additional amount of responsibility that shows the maturity necessary to progress to adulthood.

Armed with map and handbook, Freshmen Lisa Skelton and Mike Cantrell set out on their first day of high school.

FRESHMEN

As the doors opened to students in August, freshmen experienced mixed emotions. There were feelings of anticipation, excitement, and even a little fear. By attending high school, they were able to participate in many activities, such as Homecoming, for the very first time. However, many Freshmen look forward to the end of the year when they are finally able to lose the nickname, 'ANKLEBITERS'!

Sophomores Brad Ellis and Julie Shugardt demonstrate the difficulty of choosing just one club from the many organizations Clover Hill has to offer.

ORGANIZATIONS

Organizations at Clover Hill offer a wide variety of areas of interest to students. It is through clubs that students have the opportunity to study topics outside of the limitation of the classroom. There are also opportunities for students to meet others with similar interests. Clubs bring everything together through their academic as well as their social nature.

Rise and Shine. The Junior class sells doughnuts to earn money fo Prom.

"It's a messy job, but someone's got to do it," say sophomores who sponsored a car wash to raise money.

Mrs. Gordon's Home Ec class guarantees that the recipes in the Cavalier Cookbook have never been used by the school cafeteria.

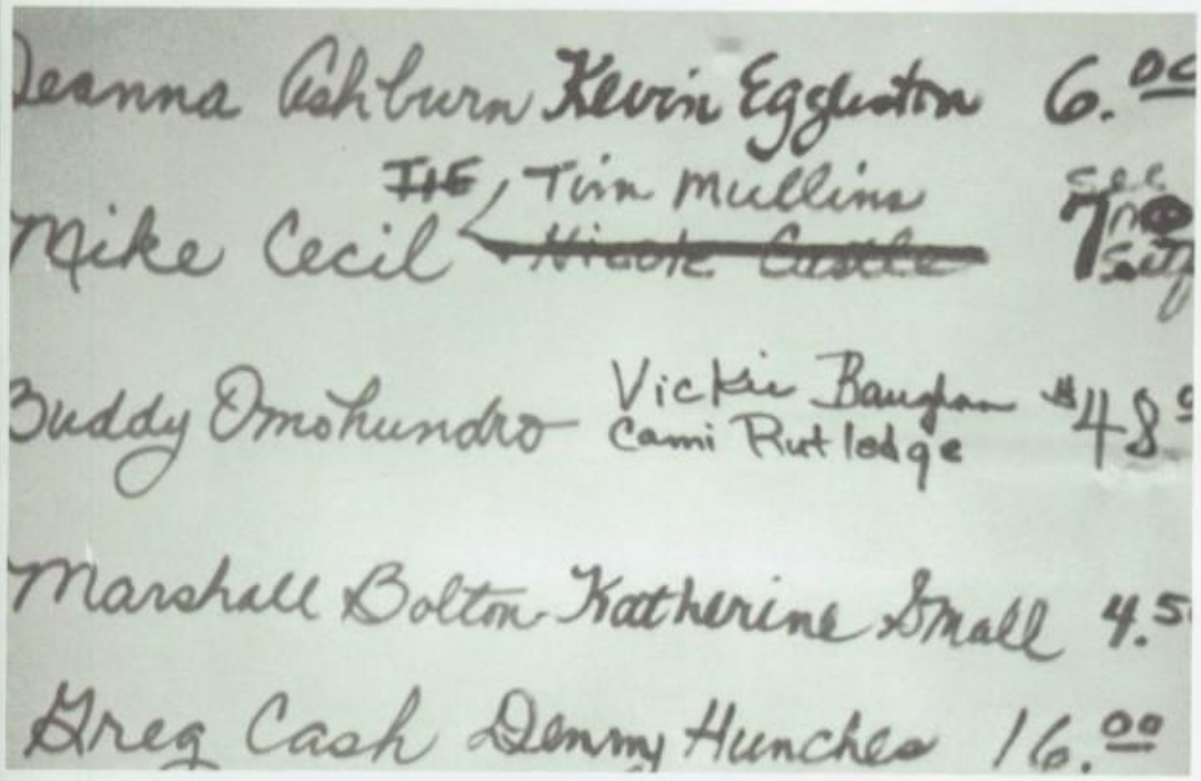
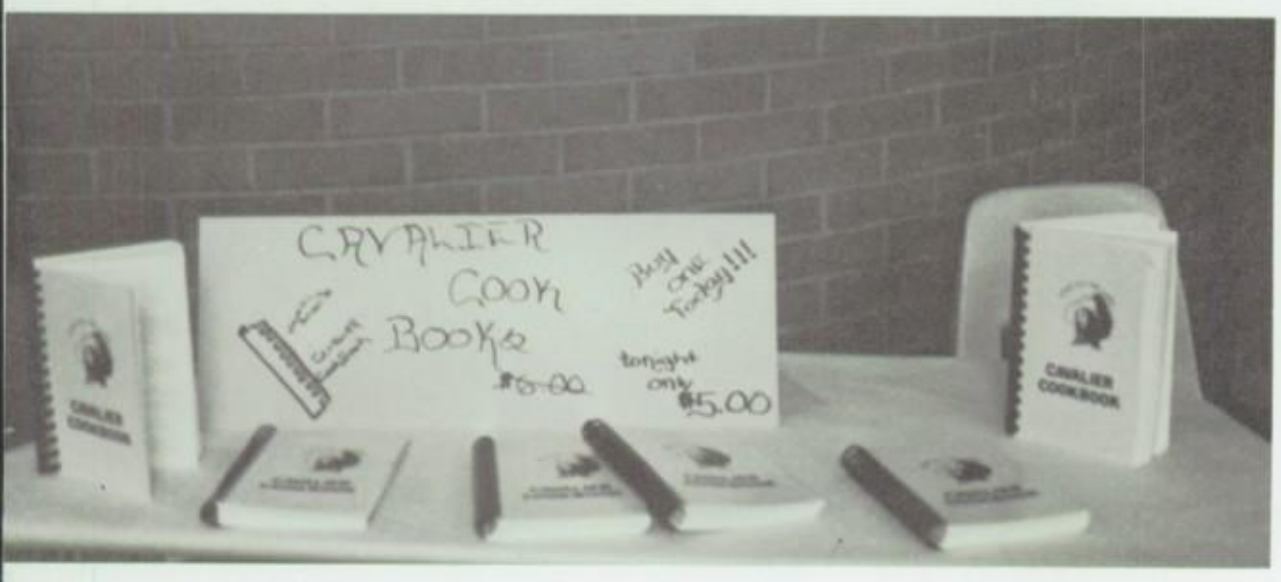
Below Prices are high for sophomore slaves, as indicated by the bid of $48.00 on Buddy Omohundro.





Members of clubs and organizations enjoy participating in several activities. To be able to take part in these special events, the club must raise needed funds. The imaginative minds of members and sponsors create several interesting ways to increase their club's treasury. Probably the most popular fundraisers are those in which involved students sell merchandise to their friends. Food sales can be huge money makers for clubs. The German Club's salespeople were extremely popular during the selling of Gummi Bears. The DECA club sold BIG Cookies to help pay for their activities. Both the Cheerleaders and Cavalettes sold candy, while band members used fruits and sausage as a fundraiser. Other clubs may sell any number of items, such as t-shirts and baked goods. Activities like the NHS' Battle of the Brains and the Computer Club's Perfect Match service also help groups improve the money supply. All clubs who enjoy activities have worked long and hard to pay for such things as picnics, parties, scholarships, and various other club offerings.

INSTALLATIONS

Senior Marie Southers taps Junior Jeff Creamer and leads him to the stage.

After the NAHS tap-in ceremony, Junior Vernon Tate returns his candle to senior Chantelle Barrows.

New and current National Honor Society Members receive school-wide recognition for their achievements.

Newly tapped NAHS members look on as Jason Drake lights his candle and places it in the line.

Senior Ken Ekers, President of the SCA, pins his successor, a smiling Jessica Forsyth.

It is through initiation into special societies that a student's outstanding qualities are recognized. Honor societies such as the NHS and the NAHS allow students to receive acknowledgement from others for their achievements. SCA officers are installed in a special ceremony where the next officers in line are pinned by the incumbents. In special organizations such as NHS, NAHS, and SCA students show their quality and dedication.

Recipe for Creativity

Get: one Challenge
Add: a dash of Talent
a cup of Originality
a pound of Hard Work
a few drops of patience
a pinch of Dedication and Cavalierian Spirit in good taste

Mix thoroughly for as long as it takes.

Serves all Cavaliers.

Creativity is a commodity that is not lacking at Clover Hill. During the 1985-86 school year, clubs, organizations, and individuals have raised Clover Hill's standards of excellence through their expressions of creativity. It is evident that many Cavaliers use the above recipe.

MARCHING TO ANOTHER DRUM

Junior Lee Angus rhythmically sets the pace.

Band Director, Mr. Steve Miles, guided the bands of Clover Hill High School to a very fine season. In the fall, the Clover Hill Marching Cavaliers worked very hard in preparing their show. They performed their musical number for all of the home and away football games. The Marching Cavaliers competed in various competitions including performance in Charlottesville and North Carolina.

The Clover Hill Jazz Band showed its talents when playing for PTA meetings and other school activities. The jazz band was also asked to entertain this year's Safeway's Beautiful Men's Pageant.

The Symphonic Band of Clover Hill showed great effort the whole school year. The Band played outstanding concerts such as the winter and spring productions. The Symphonic Band also competed in various competitions such as Apple Blossom at Busch Gardens and Festival at Clover Hill.

Mr. Miles has been the band director for Clover Hill for the past three years. The 1985-86 school year was his last at Clover Hill. Mr. Miles will continue to further his education in the music field. Mr. Miles turned the music program at Clover Hill all for the better. We wish him great luck in the future.

SCHOOL IMPROVEMENTS

Clover Hill has taken on a new look this year. Without many different clubs and organizations none of the school improvements could have taken place. One of the more notable improvements was the landscaping done around the school. The courtyard by the bus loop was beautified by members of VICA. The Key Club can take the credit for not only having the front of the school redone, but also for painting the lines in the parking lot. The ticket booth at the entrance to the football field had to be painted after graffiti was written all over it. The SCA can be thanked for that.

There were also several improvements inside the school. There were finally shelves put in all of the bathrooms. They were made by AIASA, and VICA also improved the hallway to the parking lot by putting benches there. They come in very handy when students are talking on the phone or waiting for a ride to pick them up.

The Cavalier at the entrance to the library was in need of repair, and NAHS came to the rescue. Several new members spent an afternoon replastering it and painting it.

It is these clubs and many others who make Clover Hill a more pleasant place in which to work.

National Art Honor Society students Lisa Binhammer, Will Bowles, and Jason Drake help beautify the school by repairing our Cavalier in the library.

COMPETITIONS

The driving force within every Cavalier is the undeniable urge to compete. Whether it is in sports, music or organizations, the Cavaliers have always competed to gain recognition for their school, for themselves, and most of all just for FUN! Even when it comes to competition, the Cavaliers can say "We are all together."

HELPING OUT

Teachers are busy people whose jobs inclu many things other than just educating studen Their duties include grading papers, maki lesson plans, creating tests, and recordi grades. To help them out, Clover Hill allo departments to enlist student aid. The only quirements are that the student have a fr period and the teacher's consent. The stude helpers do what they can to be of assistance the teachers, with some restrictions. The aides do several things such as use copyi machines to run off papers, file materials, well as doing a multitude of errands. Two go examples of student assistants are the hon economics aides, seniors Cheryl Allen and Lo rie Turner, who help the teacher cook a prepare materials and other duties to give t faculty a break. Teachers are very thankful find assistance such as this, and students a given experiences they will never forget.

PREPARATIONS

Any accomplishment requires a great deal of preparation; for example, this page took several hours before you were able to see it First, the idea must have been created. Next, photographers must take pictures. Then, a yearbook member lays out the page. This person must then write the summary and captions. The page is proofread and corrections are made. The final drafts are drawn, written, and mailed to the printer.

Every club becomes involved in some sort of activity and before an idea becomes a reality, lots of hard work must have been done. Promotional gimmicks, such as posters, announcements, and pamphlets draw crowds toward club events. The phrase, practice makes perfect is definitely true and before competitions, such as volleyball or soccer games against other clubs, the club members must learn to work together. Creations such as window displays, works of art, concerts, publications, etc., would never become realities if much advance planning and work did not take place.

French Club sponsors, Eloise Coffey and Bev Moore finish the final touches before their float enters the parade.

Dr. Vorhauer presents Mary German, Jennie Webb, Sonal Tejani, and Nikki McDaniel with Certificates of Merit for their outstanding performances in cross country.

At the U.S. Gymnastics Federation Meet held in Hampton, Virginia, Seniors Tim Mullins and Bobby Brankley did so well in all their events that they captured second and first place, respectively, in the Best All-Round category.

Junior Lorrie Taylor diligently studies the dictionary, which helped her win the Chesterfield County High School level spelling bee.

Special Awards are not only given to those students who have special talents or abilities, but they are also given to students who are working toward a goal. This goal can be either for personal satisfaction or team achievement. By receiving a special award, the students are publicly being recognized for their patience and dedication, which are helping them to make their goal a reality. During the 1985-86 school year many Cavaliers have been the recipient of one honor or another. The goals achieved by dedicated students reflect the unity and togetherness within the ranks of Clover Hill and exemplify the motto that "we are all together."

Students attending Clover Hill more than understand the purpose of a high school education. It is a stepping stone to the future, whether that future includes additional schooling, employment, or homemaking. This is an area where certain clubs and organizations such as the DECA, FBLA, FHA, and VICA clubs become very important. Each of these help to teach the involved student to be self-motivated and to develop and enhance personal talents. These talents along with acquired experience are invaluable to future careers and in achieving financial and sociological independence.

Sporting letter jackets, seniors Bobby Brankley and Denise Lacey discuss the success of the 1985-86 athletic teams.

SPORTS

There is a wide range of sports available to students at Clover Hill. There is participation by both girls and boys in events such as tennis, track, and basketball just to name a few. Sports are a vital component of the well-rounded student because they allow for physical development in addition to the mental development achieved in classes.

Improvement

The Junior Varsity Girls' Basketball team had a very successful season with a record of five wins and nine losses. The team showed vast improvement throughout the year, both as individuals and as a unit. The team was greatly supported by Coach Wilton Johns and the Co-Captains Caryn Allen and Michelle Mann. The team consisted of five sophomores — Caryn Allen, Sonja Hamlin, Susan Oddo, Nancy O'Regan, and Pam Woods. There were also six freshmen — Julie Bosselait, Carla Donovan, Missy Kennedy, Kayce Killebrew, Michelle Mann, and Heidi Millis. Those members will make for a good balance of help for next year's varsity team and will also serve as guide to the future junior varsity teams.

GAINING R-E-S-P-E-C-T

Best Finish Since '79

The 1985-86 Varsity Girls' Basketball Team had its best season since 1979. Clover Hill gained new respect in basketball ending their season with a regular season record of eight wins and eight losses and an overall record of eight wins and nine losses.

Seniors Debbie Emmerling and Kelly Mayo played important roles in the team's success during 1985. Debbie did an excellent job in scoring and rebounding. Kelly did a tremendous job with outside shooting and ball handling. Junior Kathy Naworal gave the Cavaliers most of their points. In fact, this player led both the team and the Dominion District in scoring with her nineteen points.

The Lady Cavaliers finished the regular season in sixth place and lost the first round of the Dominion District Tournament to L.C. Bird. Along with their best season in years, the ladies enjoyed the best support ever from the student body throughout the regular season, as well as the tournament.

. . . ARE TOGETHER

Coach Jim Wagoner's impossible workouts combined with Coach Jim Albertson's "drill sergeant" style conditioning led the 1985 Boys' and Girls' Cross Country teams to one of their most successful seasons ever. The girls went undefeated to capture the Regular Season Championship. They went on to capture second in both the District and Regional meets and place seventh in the state meet. The boys did equally well during the regular season with a 9 and 1 record; the best ever by a Clover Hill boys' team. After placing fourth in the District Meet and third in Regionals the boys placed eleventh in the State Meet, also a new high for a Clover Hill boys' team.

The girls were led by Junior Jennie Webb and Sophomore Mary German who alternated first and second places throughout the season. They were backed by Junior Chrissie Overton, and Freshmen Sonal Tejani and Nikki McDaniel.

Senior Chris German, undefeated, helped the boys to the regular season runner-up position. He was backed by Seniors Aaron Gillespie, Chip Humphrey, Juniors Mike Dipiero, Robert Glenn, and Freshman Brian Tucker.

Regional Champs

The 1985-86 golf team achieved remarkable results. Following a second place regular season finish, the Cavalier Golfers won the District Tournament Championship at Brandermill with a one shot victory over Mills Godwin. Tim Conner's brilliant one over par 73 and Jeff Greenberg's 77 achieved a major upset.

In the Regional Tournament held at Meadowbrook Country Club, the Cavalier golfers had a much easier time. They won the Regional Tournament by 12 shots over Mills Godwin. Again it was Tim Conner and Jeff Greenberg with a 77 and 75, respectively; aided by another 77 by Jodie Farrington.

At the State Tournament held at Stonehenge following a two-day rain delay, a shortened one day tournament was held. The Cavaliers finished fourth behind Gretna, Godwin, and Culpepper.

Overall the season was a great success. This was the first golf team to win a District and Regional Championship in the same year. Jeff Greenberg was voted Most Valuable Player. The outlook for 1986 is very favorable. All starters return except for graduating seniors, Jodie Farrington and Fred Mitchell. The team is looking forward to moving up to AAA and the increased challenges.

An Exciting Year!

The 1985-86 Cavalettes had an extremely active and successful year. Starting early, the squad sold key chains in the spring of the previous year and attended the University of Richmond's Superstar Drill Team Camp during summer vacation. As an additional fundraiser, the girls sold chocolate turtles, peanut butter cups, and various other types of candies in the fall.

During the school year, the girls participated in home football and basketball games, including the Dominion District Tournament, by entertaining the crowd in the half time activities. Pep rallies, as in the past, became another place to perform. At the Homecoming gathering, they joined with the cheerleading squads in a routine to the song, "Oh Sheila." Here, also, each member was paired with a willing participant for a beach theme dance, where the guys imitated surfers and the girls rode skateboards. As tradition dictates, the Cavalettes sold homecoming spirit ribbons to help increase support during this important week. To help improve spirit, the team attended many games and, along with the cheerleaders, led the crowd in support for the athletes.

For the second year, these talented Cavaliers were sponsored by Patty Kauzlarich and Brenda Harlow. The honor of the title of co-captain was held by four people during the season. Seniors Janet Holt and Beth Martin led the squad for football season, while two additional seniors, Kristi Rowe and Susan Sobrito, served during basketball season. Special honor should be bestowed upon 1986 graduates Janet Holt and Susan Sobrito who both were three-year Cavalettes.

WHAT WORKS FOR US . . .

An award-winning team

The Junior Varsity Cheerleaders experienced a very productive season during 1985-86. Their job was to help increase spirit, and they did in many ways. During pep rallies, along with their varsity counterparts and the Cavalettes, they performed and convinced a sometimes unwilling underclassman crowd to stand up and show support for the Cavaliers. They also cheered for the J.V. basketball teams and the football team during their games. To help increase spirit and raise needed funds, the team members sold programs for the varsity football and boys' basketball teams, as well as the Dominion District Tournament held at Clover Hill.

Robin Belcher, a teacher at Swift Creek Middle School, held the job as sponsor and helped the girls improve upon their past accomplishments. Serving as the 1985-86 captain was Robin Osterbind. One thing that helped most was their attendance at a summer camp held at the College of Hampden-Sydney. Here, they won a trophy for receiving first place in the final competition.

Almost every afternoon, the J.V. cheerleaders practice their techniques so they will look like the award-winning team they are.

An exhausted but rowdy Varsity Cheering squad performs during one of the triple overtimes in the Cavaliers' victorious Dominion District Tournament game against Midlothian.

. . . Guys Join in

The 1985-86 Varsity Cheerleading team started raising school spirit early by attending a summer camp at the College of Hampden-Sydney. The squad learned many new spirit raising techniques during their four-day stay, while receiving second place in the close final competition.

In beginning a new year at Clover Hill many innovative ideas were introduced for pep rallies. Pie contests, pillow people, and relay races were among the activities used to generate school enthusiasm.

The squad's sponsor, Mrs. Brenda Weston, was instrumental in getting the faculty involved in many of these activities. The captains, Michelle Stokes and Leigh Anne Wright, organized the squad's performances and made up cheers to generate spirit among the crowds at sporting events.

At the beginning of the boys' basketball season, male cheerleaders were added to the squad. These young men sparked a new interest to the performances on the floor during time-outs.

After a long year of football, girls' basketball, wrestling and boys' basketball the cheering season came to an end. Now it is up to future squads to uphold our traditions of spirit.

Season Builds Character

The 1985 Junior Varsity Football season did not turn out as well as the beginning of the season had indicated. The team went 3-0 for a quick start, but then came the game against L. C. Bird. After the loss to Bird, the team went on to lose the remaining four games to end their season 3-5. Although the season had its ups and downs, the team stuck together and played hard during the entire season.

The team was led by two new coaches this year, Mr. Vaughan and Mr. Jenkins. Coach Jenkins teaches at Bird which made the loss against this school particularly hard on him. The season did not go as well as everyone expected, but it did build character.

Clover Hill had one of the most dangerous running attacks in the league due to Kirt Studivant and the line of the Cavaliers. Having an efficient air attack, to keep the opponents off guard, helped a great deal, also.

This season is over, but there are always future seasons. We thank the team and coaches for a fine season.

Cavaliers Shoot For a Winning Season

The J.V. Basketball Team had a good season, finishing with a 13-7 record. Team captains Mark Conner and Joel Hughes led their teammates through the long hours of practice, the wearing of ties on game days, and the victories and defeats of the season. Although the season began with a tough loss to L. C. Bird, the Cavs fought back to have a winning season. Billy Sigler, T. J. Holden, Joel Hughes, Jim Brown, and Tee Fallen were the starters, with an excellent second-string team consisting of Mark Conner, Jamie Long, Andy "Moose" Sumpter, Jason Miles, and Kenny Yoo to back them up. Additional team members Scott Altman, Robert Morris, Craig Currie, Tony Bowen, and Sean Mabe with their skill, enthusiasm, and team spirit helped lift the Cavaliers to their successful season. Congratulations for a job well done to the 1985-86 J.V. Cavaliers!!

CAVALIERS RETURN TO THE SPOTLIGHT!

All Weather Cavaliers

Clover Hill's 1985 Varsity Football Team returned to the status it had been accustomed to before the failure of the 1984 season. The season's beginning seemed to be a continuation of the previous one with two losses, but with an exciting victory over Matoaca hope began to rise for a succesful season. Throughout the year extreme weather conditions could have become a problem. The heat during the first few games could only be described as "excruciating." Heavy rains fell during one game, and as in previous seasons the final competitions were played in frigid weather. In all cases, win or lose, the Cavaliers proved their strength was affected little by the natural obstacles.

The Cavaliers ended their season with a 6-3-1 record. The game against the Monacan Chiefs is considered to be by far the most exciting of the year. The Richmond newspapers had touted it as the "duel of the quarterbacks," and it was just that. With four minutes remaining the Cavaliers were trailing 21-13, but the team rallied for a touchdown and a two point conversion which tied the game. Head Coach Ted Salmon said, "A tie is not a win, but you've got to be happy with the comeback." One of the other highlights has to be the final game where the Cavaliers demolished Thomas Dale 51-12.

Several Cavaliers were honored for their excellence which again brought Clover Hill well deserved praise. A number of its members were named to the All District and All Region teams. In addition, Seniors Robert Cooley and Andy Harth were named "Player of the Week" during the season, and Harth was also named to the Second Team of the All State team. Quarterback Senior Brian Connelly finished fourth in passing, while Junior Todd Lampman and Senior David Fleming earned second and fourteenth for receiving. Senior Roger Grady was most notable, though. As well as being named to the All District, All Region, and All Metro teams, he became the first Cavalier to be named to the AA All State team. To top it all off, this four year starter had his jersey (55) retired. Congratulations to all the Cavaliers for a tremendous season.

At the signal, the offensive line storms to protect the quarterback, Senior Brian Connelly, from the stampeding defense.

TRADITION CONTINUED

Six Years of Cavalier Excellence

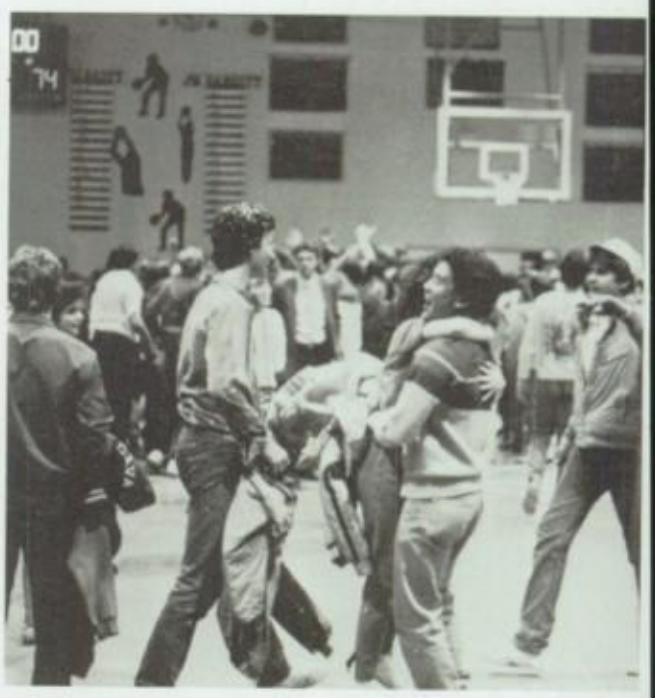
As the clock ticks closer to zero, a capacity crowd bites their nails to see who will make the final basket of this game. When the timer buzzes the score is tied!! The exhausted, but enthusiastic, players run onto the court as overtime play begins. This was just the beginning of exciting overtime action during the semi-final game of the Dominion District Tournament against Midlothian. The cheerleaders and spectators, covered with confetti, stood and supported the team with such cheers as "WE — WE ARE THE 'HEE HAW' GANG" as another, and still another, overtime took place. Finally after the third tie-breaking overtime, the Cavaliers were able to overcome their opponent with a score of 74-72. This was Clover Hill's last victory of the 1985-86 season, and it is sure to be one of the lasting memories of this exciting year.

The game was just part of the excellent season which ended with a 16-7 record. The Cavaliers opened the season with an exciting 60-58 win at L. C. Bird. The Cavs also had other big victories over Colonial Heights (the pre-season favorite), Midlothian, and Manchester. The Cavaliers finished the season in third place and reached the final game of the Dominion District Tournament, losing there to Colonial Heights 54-50.

The 1985-86 team did a tremendous job in carrying out the running tradition of Clover Hill basketball. The Dominion District, as we had known it, ended after this season. The Cavaliers have enjoyed more success than any of the other ten teams. In six years, the Cavaliers won three district titles, one regional title, and two Dominion District tournament Runner-Up positions. Clover Hill was the only team in the district to make an appearance in the Virginia Group AA State Tournament.

In 1985-86, the team was led by returning starters Chris Conner and Roy Clark. Chris did an excellent job leading the team in rebounding. Roy added his talent with leading the team in scoring. Other seniors who played important roles were Andy Smith and Gib Carson on the wings, Cham Silver and Paul Hutchinson on the post, and Mike Dinelli at point guard.



A laryngitis-suffering crowd shows their enthusiasm after the buzzer rings and signifies Clover Hill's victory over Midlothian.

As he waits for the ball to fall, a second seems like hours for Senior Cham Silver.

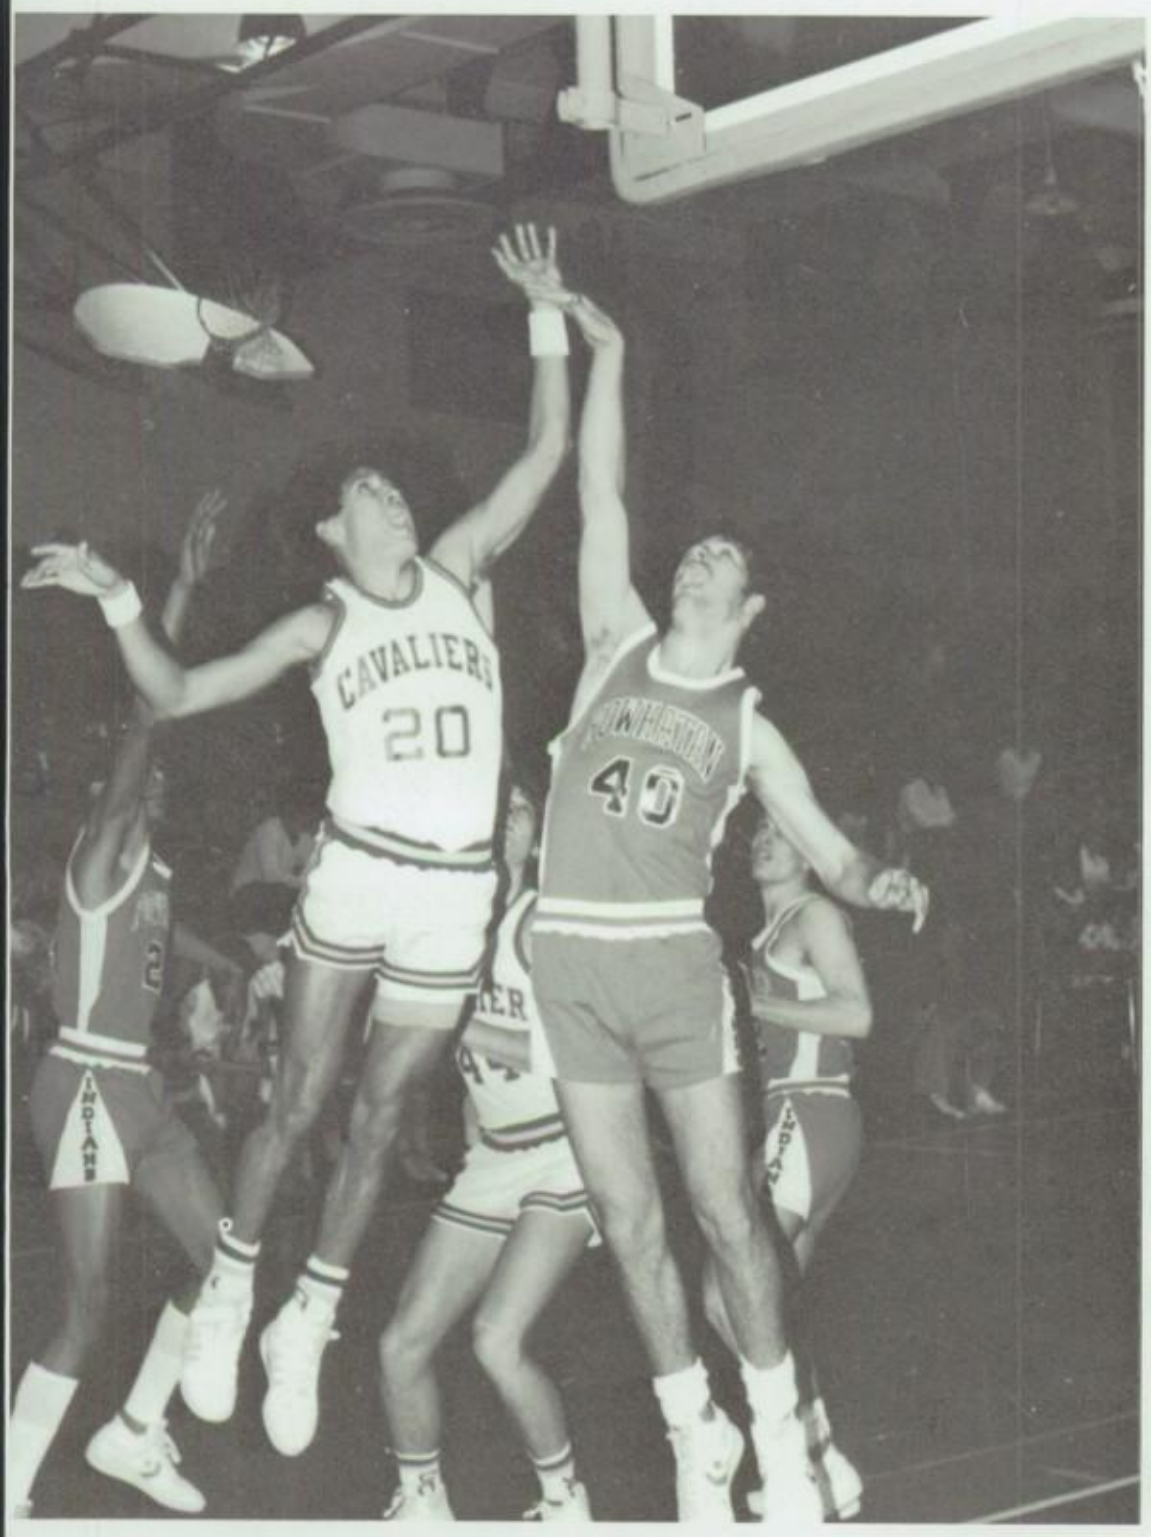
Senior Co-Captain Chris Conner jumps high above his opponent to put the Cavs another two points ahead.



Senior Roy Clark proves that he is both the team and Dominion District MVP in every game he plays.

Will Senior Paul Hutchinson be able to overcome the Manchester Lancer? Of course!

Concentration, as well as skill, is needed to play basketball well, and Junior Todd Lampman has plenty of both.

When the going gets tough . . .

The 1985-86 Girls' Gymnastics Team made a strong comeback after the loss of past M.V.P. Julie Gerold. She was their only loss, leaving five out of six returning underclassmen. Sophomore Jenny Rogness and Senior Chrissy Andrews both advanced to the Regional Competition where they both placed in the top ten in their events. The team placed third in the district meet trailing a tough Manchester team by four tenths of a point in the all-around competition. It was a strong contest that was handled well by the girls. Jenny Rogness placed fourth in the all-around competition. Strong team performances were turned in by Seniors Vickie Baughan and Cami Rutledge, Sophomore Beth Boyd, and Freshmen Sharon Tubman and Brittany Hall.

Another factor working against the team during the year was the loss of their great coach, Barbara Mehrer. She had successfully coached the team for several years but reluctantly had to give up the job for the 1985-86 season. Despite this loss, the team worked well together in order to turn out the fine season they did. Good luck to those 1986-87 returning gymnasts, and a special expression of gratitude and good luck to the three seniors — Chrissy Andrews, Vickie Baughan, and Cami Rutledge — who represented the Clover Hill Girls' Gymnastics team for four years!

The 1985 Winter Track Team participated in several invitational meets where many took top positions. Among the many tracks the team ran were the College of William and Mary, Virginia Tech, Heritage High School, and the Arthur Ashe Center. At the Metro Invitational, Senior Aaron Gillespie became the champion of the 1000 meter race, and Sophomore Buddy Omohundro won on the hurdles. Here, also, Todd Walsh and Eric Gass finished first and third in the 500 meters, and the 4x400 relay team took third place, while the list of Virginia Invitational Champions included Senior Chris German in the two mile and the 4x800 relay team. Senior David Fleming also placed in the hurdles at this meet.

J.V. Wrestlers Tip the Scale

Sophomore Benson Howard has the advantage over his opponent.

The Clover Hill J.V. Wrestling team enjoyed a winning season and multiple places in tournaments during the 1985-86 school year. Finishing with three wins and two losses, the most impressive victory was over Midlothian 71-6. Cavalier wrestlers were extremely impressive in tournament action. At the Arthur Ashe Invitational Tournament, these athletes took fifth place out of sixteen schools. As individual wrestlers they also did very well. Jamie Shiflett took 1st place in the 176 weight class, as Marshall Benton captured 3rd place in the 98 pound class. Jeff Martin (145) and Benson Howard (HWT) finished in fourth place and Ric Bailey (105) and Jason Livingston (167) won fifth place in their classes. Following them were Corry Janiga (185) and Spencer Scrioner (120) in sixth place.

The Midlothian Tournament also became a place for Clover HIll wrestlers to show their talent. Jason Livingston (155) was CH's only first place finisher and David Young (119) and Jeremy Stone (176) took second place. Third place finishers were Marshall Benton (98), Jeff Martin (145), Corry Janiga (185), and Benson Howard (HWT). Also placing were Mike Davis (112) and Jason Eggleston (132) in sixth place. The team coaches, Mr. Albertson, Mr. Cooke, and Mr. Tuzzo, are extremely optimistic about the wrestling future of these athletes.

BLOOD, SWEAT, AND CHEERS

The Clover Hill Varsity Wrestling Team had a great season again in 1985-86! Fighting for an undefeated 13-0 overall record and the Dominion District Championship, the team took the title and five first place finishes by Jamie Rogers, Joe Norris, Rich Gilmore, Ryan Eggleston, and Todd Crostic. Also on the agenda was the L. C. Bird Invitational Tournament, which the team won for the second year in a row, and the Arthur Ashe Invitational Tournament, where individual champs included John Lockett and Jamie Rogers. The team averaged fifty-two points a match, while their opponents only averaged fifteen, and six wrestlers on the 1985-86 varsity team had over twenty wins. During this season, six members of the team were regional place winners: Jamie Rogers, Joe Norris, Rich Gilmore, Bill Ferraiolo, Jamie Shifflett, and Todd Crostic. At the State Tournament, three wrestlers placed individually: Todd Crostic, 3rd; Rich Gilmore, 5th; and Ryan Eggleston, 5th; and Clover Hill placed eleventh out of sixty-two schools. Thanks to the great coaching effort of Mr. Albertson, Mr. Cooke, and Mr. Tuzzo, the team pulled off yet another excellent season.

J.V. SOFTBALL

New Girl on the block

New to the sports scene at Clover Hill High School was the addition of a girls JV Softball team. The girls started out their season with a bang, winning three of four games, before suffering a four game losing streak. Turning it back around, the team finished strong, winning their last three games to complete their first season with a respectable 6-5 record.

Diamonds Are Always Fun

The 1986 Varsity Softball team finished the year with three wins and thirteen losses in the Dominion District and had an over-all record of 3 and 15. The year was highlighted by two wins over district tournament runner-up Powhatan. The team was led by seniors Shelby Davis and Kelly Mayo, while Kathy Naworal and Melissa Wright received all-district honors. With much of the team returning in 1987, the future should bring an improvement in the team's competitiveness in the new AAA district.

WHO'S ON FIRST?

The Clover Hill Junior Varsity Baseball team had an interesting season. The 1985-86 season was marked by a win here and a loss there. At the end of the season, however, the team just could not seem to pull enough runs together. Many players remarked that having a lady coach was quite a change, but Ms. Shelton gave the team encouragement while at the same time doing some fine coaching. Ms. Shelton's view of the JV team was optimistic, "The team has lacked continuity over the past few years, but with the outstanding talent of rising sophomores it can look forward to making a fine showing in a new AAA district next year!"

Given leadership by thier four seniors, Brian Connelly, Andy Smith, Wayne Duty, and Stan Martin, a young varsity baseball team battled its way to an 8-8 District Record and a 12-9 record overall. Brian Connelly handled most of the pitching duties and Andy Smith provided consistency at the plate on a team that placed five on the ALL-DISTRICT TEAM: Brian Connelly — 1st team pitcher, Andy Smith — 2nd team outfielder, Wayne Duty — Honorable Mention catcher, Todd Lampman — Honorable Mention 3rd base, and Chris Goodman — Honorable Mention shortstop. Chris Goodman, Chris Mulligan, Todd Lampman, and Neil Harding contributed power, and Brian Connelly pitched eleven games with a 2.39 earned run average and a record of 8-3. Wayne Duty was almost errorless behind the plate and Chris Goodman aided with his performance at shortstop. The team, with only four seniors, did exceptionally well in the District.

In the Dominion District Tournament, Clover Hill defeated Midlothian, the second place team, 3-1 in the first round. In the second round, our team defeated Thomas Dale, the third place team, 13-12, and in the third round, we lost to Meadowbrook 5-4. This made the Varsity Baseball team's overall record 12-9.

The 1986 Girls' Track team finished the regular season with a record of 8-2. The girls won the Dominion District Championship Meet with an outstanding team effort. Continued excellent performances gave them a second place in the Regional Meet.

Seniors Vickie Baughan, Cami Rutledge, Heather Hatch, and Lisa Binhammer teamed with sophomores Becky Angus and Jenny Rogness to give the team excellent performances in the field hurdles, short sprints and relays.

Freshman Sonal Tejani, Sophomore Mary German, and Junior Jennie Webb led a great corp of distance runners that gave the team a steady supply of points in big meets. Sonal Tejani qualified for the state meet in both the 1600 and 3200 meters. Mary German set a new school record for 3200 meters, and Jennie Webb broke the 800 and 1600 meter school records.

Versatile Vickie Baughan won five medals in the district championships, setting district and school records in the triple jump. Easily winning the MVP award for the second straight year, she scored more points this season than anyone in school history.

The boys spring track team finished with an impressive 10-0 record this year. For the third year in a row, the seniors led the team to the tournament championship and to the three year record of 29-1.

The spring track team's success is, in large part, directly a result of the hard work of the seniors. During their four years, the following boys have led the team; Captain: David Fleming, participating in long jump, high jump, pole vault, mile relay, high hurdles, and intermediate hurdles; Captain, Eric Gass, participating in the 400m, mile relay, and pole vault; Chris German, participating in the mile and the two mile; Aaron Gillespie, participating in the mile relay and the 800m; and Todd Walsh, participating in the intermediate hurdles, long jump, high jump, triple jump, discus, and the mile relay. Other contributing members were Sophomore Buddy Omohundro in the long jump, triple jump, and the high hurdles; Junior Rebel Holbrook in the pole vault; Junior Mike DiPiero in the two mile; Senior Robert Cooley in the 100m and the 200m; Mike Grube in the high jump, triple jump, and the long jump; Grant Cahoon in the 400; and Mike Stutzman in the mile and the 2 mile.

The team proceeded to win the District title, become the Regional runners-up, and finally capture the coveted title of State Champions. Major contributors in the State meet were David Fleming, placing first in both the intermediate and high hurdles, thus earning him the team MVP. Buddy Omohundro, placing 4th in the high hurdles, Chris German, placing 6th in the 3200m, and finally the mile relay team, composed of Aaron Gillespie, Eric Gass, Todd Walsh, and David Fleming who placed 3rd.

Invitationals are extra meets that the Clover Hill team was invited to participate in. On the whole we dominated the season. Congratulations boys for a job well done.

The Clover Hill Girl's Tennis Team had a very successful 1985-86 season. The starting Varsity Singles and Doubles were Sophomore Theresa Geddes (15-7), Senior Joey Ergenbright (14-6), Sophomore Kim Jenkins (7-7), Freshman Melissa Malek (10-5), Freshman Lisa Anderson (11-1), and Senior Lisa Norbeck (8-4). The team placed third in the Dominion District Tournament with a score of 7-2. Theresa Geddes was Clover Hill's number one Singles player and when she was partnered by Joey Ergenbright, they were our number one Doubles players. During the tournament, Theresa Geddes lost in the semi-finals to powerful Shannon Cubit of Midlothian, and Theresa Geddes and Joey Ergenbright lost in the semi-finals to Godwin's Conklin and Campbell. The season closed with a record of 86 individual wins and 41 individual losses.

The Boys' Tennis Team had one of its most successful seasons in Dominion District competition. Despite the loss of seven seniors from the last year's second place team, the Cavaliers posted an 8-2 season, highlighted by a close match with the state champions, Mills Godwin.

The team benefited greatly from the experience of Seniors Clay Arey and Kevin Rackley and Juniors Greg Geddes and Bryan Weatherford.

Seniors Long Nghiem, Barry Blalock, and Jeff Philbrick, Sophomore transfer Pete Mavromatis, and Freshmen Joel Crowe, Chip Goodman, and Cary Weatherford contributed their talents to form a well-rounded team.

There were many notable accomplishments during the 1986 season. First, Cary Weatherford became the only Cavalier of the 1980's to have an undefeated singles season at 10-0. Next, Greg Geddes reached the district tournament before losing to John Hudson of Midlothian (6-1, 6-1). Finally, Greg Geddes and Pete Mavromatis reached the district tournament doubles finals before losing to Wade McGuire and Raj Bonifacius of Mills Godwin (6-2, 6-3).

FACULTY

It is through the tedious and often thankless work of the faculty that students are able to gain the knowledge necessary to be successful in life. The hardworking administration keeps Clover Hill running smoothly through their efficient management.

THE LEADERS

"When the leadership in an organization changes, there is usually a period of high stress for the members of that organization. Much of this stress is created because of the change process that occurs with new administration. Both the school and community of Clover Hill High School have been very productive and enthusiastic in accepting changes. The efforts by people, both faculty and students, to become involved in helping our school achieve its goals have been welcomed by me and the rest of the administration. Many of the positive and effective ideas developed this year have been made possible by the hard work of the assistant principals, Mr. Walters and Mrs. Wilson.

I hope that we can make this year the beginning of many good years as we strive to make Clover Hill High School the best."

Reading

In the reading classes here at Clover Hill, we have made an attempt to show students that "Reading Enhances American Dreams." One of our projects this year was to write to a famous person and ask him or her about his or her favorite books or author. We received responses from people like President Reagan, former Governor Charles Robb, Richard Petty, Alan Alda, and Roberta Gorqueta, who is Chairman of the Board and Chief Executive Officer of Coca-Cola.

Writing

The English Department cooperated on numerous activities and programs this year. On December 4th, all juniors were given the opportunity to attend the Boston Chamber Theatre's production of "Double Billing." Part of the freshman class attended a similar performance in April. On May 1st, three classes of British Literature students saw Arms and the Man at the Theater Virginia.

The department cooperated in the publication of two outstanding journalistic endeavors. The Clover Patch and The Cavalerian. In addition, two students, Patty Day and Valerie Jinnette, attended a six weeks Writers' Workshop at the Chesterfield Technical Center. There they were coached in their writing by a professional poet.

The overall program for the year in English was an emphasis on using the writing process in composition. Two new sets of texts, Laidlaw's Composition and Grammar and Coronado's English Writing and Skills became the foundation of the English writing program.

More than 1,400 students at Clover Hill were enrolled for mathematics and/or computer science courses during the 1985-86 school year. In addition to classroom activities there are math and computer science clubs which allow students to extend their classroom knowledge through competition. For the Math Club, the year was highlighted by the team of Aaron Gillespie, Brian Lindholm, and Bryan Robertson, which captured first place at the V.C.U. Math Contest in November. The Computer Team, whose members were Brian Lindholm, Wendy Faulkner, Bruce Redmon, and Chris Mullins, took first place in the BASIC portion of the Longwood Computer Contest.

HISTORY DOES REPEAT ITSELF

The Social Science Department at Clover Hill High School is both dynamic and progressive. The department teaches a multitude of courses including Geography, World History, United States History, Government, Practical Law, Economics, and Sociology.

The department is actively involved outside the classroom in sponsoring many programs designed to give the students a hands-on approach to our curriculum. Such programs include: a model judiciary program, a model county government program, the Richard Bland College Model Congress, an essay contest on the virtues of private ownership of property, and an extensive study of the Presidential electorial process.

Clover Hill's Social Science Department has a plethora of guest speakers who give unusual insight into their areas of expertise. Also, we give students opportunities to see history in the making and government in action via way of varied field trips.

The Science Department at Clover Hill High School "puts it all together" with the earth, biological, chemical, and physical sciences. Through an inquiry approach students learn independent thinking as they investigate the sciences that comprise their life. With the increased graduation standard in science, more students are compelled to be exposed to a more varied curriculum from which they can select a possible career. Individual projects are encouraged for all students, culminating in a science display and county wide Science Fair.

The Foreign Language Department at Clover Hill High School offers five levels of French, German, Latin, and Spanish for our students. Over fifty-eight percent of the Clover Hill student body takes a foreign language and participates in clubs and extracurricular activities sponsored by the department. Foreign Language Week, participation in Homecoming activities, field trips, Spring Break Overseas, and involvement in exchange programs keep our language teachers busy and involved. Clover Hill is the BEST and we in the Foreign Language Department do our best to keep it that way!

PAINT US A PICTURE!

This year the Clover Hill Art Department experienced a great deal of growth. We added a new teacher to teach the fine arts and crafts, and became the only school in Chesterfield County to have a seventh period art class. Our students have been very active and once again produced many fine pieces supporting our reputation as one of the top programs in the state. This fall honors went to Lisa Binhammer, Heather Bahorsky, and Alex Yoo who were among twenty-five high school students chosen to represent the state of Virginia in the South Atlantic States show in North Carolina. Work hung at the General Assembly received rave reviews from our delegate John Watkins. Art students also displayed work at the county Spring Arts Festival and various school exhibits.

In December the photography and advanced art students took the train to Washington, D.C. to see the Ansel Adams and the Treasures of Great Britain shows at the National Gallery, and in April they visited the new west wing and collections at the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts.

DRAW AND SAW

The Industrial Arts Department, which includes both the industrial arts and mechanical drawing courses, has been able to serve our total community. Our programs allow us this flexibility to assist in some everyday needs and still maintain our regular and required programs. We have helped make small repairs, letter signs, and provide a bit of glue or a nail or two. Our department has an ongoing co-organitive effort with both the art and drama programs.

Finally, through our American Industrial Arts Students Association (AIASA) chapter, we have helped to landscape our school grounds, install shelves in our bathrooms and help buy library materials.

MUSIC IS AN INSPIRATION TO US ALL!

VIRGINIA CAMPBELL: Chorus and Orchestra
STEVE MILES: Symphonic Band, Marching Band, and Jazz Band

Clover Hill High School's Music Department offers a variety of courses in order to satisfy the students' interests. The bands under the direction of Mr. Steve Miles found the 1985-86 school year to be a very productive one. Clover Hill may boast having marching, jazz, and symphonic bands. Each has peformed for several events, such as the marching band's participation in the 6th Street Marketplace opening day parade.

Ms. Virginia Campbell directed the choirs and the orchestra during their successful year. The offerings to the vocally talented students are mixed chorus, Calvacades, and the Clovehlier singers. The choirs offered two concerts during the school year and found several willing audiences at several assemblies. Also part of Clover Hill's music program is its orchestra. With engagements such as the Senior Awards Assembly, the PTSA Awards Assembly, and the chorus concerts, this group also had a busy year.

POTS, PANS, AND DISHPAN HANDS!

JANIS BEAN: Life Management I and Family Living

FRANCES GORDON, DEPARTMENT HEAD: Catering Specialist, Marriage and the Family, Child Development, Family Living, and FHA Sponsor

The HOME ECONOMICS DEPARTMENT at Clover Hill High School offers interested students a large variety of courses. One of these courses is Catering Specialist, a two hour course where students learn how to prepare for large gatherings. Life Management I, Marriage, and two semester courses, Marriage and Family and Child Development help students prepare for their future. Family Living offers seniors the opportunity to experience the ups and downs of adult life.

The department, as usual, was very active during the year. The Family Living Classes participated in two activities that made school a bit more interesting — the mock wedding and the care of egg babies. A nursery school for different pre-school age groups and the hospitality room at the Basketball Tournament were two offerings of this department. Also, the groups provided various meals and treats during the year including refreshments for the PTSA meetings and prom, baked beans for the senior picnic, a continental breakfast for the faculty, and a steak dinner. As a fundraiser, the Home Economics Department sold the Cavalier Cook Book.

BOOKS, BOOKS, BOOKS

The purpose of the library is to provide materials to support the curriculum and also to supply books and magazines for recreational reading.

In this way, the library serves all of Clover Hill High School as the repository of books, magazines, pamphlets, newspapers, microfische, filmstrips, cassettes, records, video tapes, a equipment necessary for using these materials. The library staff and aides check these materials in and out and shelve or file them until checked out again.

All library materials are selected by the staff with suggestions from the faculty and students. They are classified by subject, and catalog cards are prepared for every item and filed.

The staff serves as reference resources in helping students and teachers find needed materials. Student aides serve the school by helping with curriculum duties, shelving books, sorti and filing cards, making photo copies, and laminating.

CAN WE TALK?

Clover Hill School guidance services are offered to all students. Guidance Counselors subscribe to the theme "We are all together" in establishing common goals for the betterment of each individual student.

The Guidance Department consists of five full-time counselors and one half-tin.e counselor. Counselor assignment of students is alphabetically across all grade lines.

Counseling students is considered a number one priority. This includes personal, crisis, educational, and vocational planning counseling. Counselors also hope to establish a close working relationship with teachers, administrators, and other support staff members. These include the school psychologist, nurse, sociologist, speech therapist, and outside referral agencies.

Some of the guidance activities this year included: the Job Fair, College Night, Financial Aid Seminar, group guidance for career planning, and orientation for the rising ninth grade from Swift Creek.

Guidance Counselor and Department Head Mildred Valz is only one of many who lend students at Clover Hill a helping hand.

A work training program in which the student receives credit for work experience in industry along with classroom work designed to supplement his on-the-job training, ICT offers Clover Hill students the opportunity to receive valuable training in one of the many career fields within the areas of trade, industrial, technical or health occupations. Business, industrial and professional establishments provide part-time employment and supervised training to ICT students. Clover Hill provides the subject matter related to the student's occupational experiences and related instruction necessary to prepare him for employment and be a productive worker in his career interest. A two year program, ICT begins in the student's junior year and offers two units of credit each year.

A large part of the ICT program is the VICA club. They participated in the District XII VICA contests and state leadership and skill competitions. The club has represented the theme "We are all together" with several school projects, such as the 1984-85 Save Our Statue project and the 1985-86 program to beautify the school by making improvements to the bus loop.

PATRICIA CYRUS: Accounting I, Keyboarding I, and Keyboarding II
BRENDA HARLOW: Keyboarding I, Introduction to Business, Office Services I, and Cavalettes Sponsor.

The BUSINESS DEPARTMENT at Clover Hill High School plays a significant role in the lives of the students of our school in that we train and prepare our students for employment during and after high school. The students can prepare for a useful occupation in the areas of secretarial work, bookkeeping, computer operators, general office work, as well as various other business related occupations.

We serve the students of Clover Hill by training them on typewriters, computers, calculators, telephones, and various copying machines. The students are taught the art of filing, payroll management, human relations, recordkeeping, word processing, and everyday business practices such as balancing a checkbook. In this way, the needs of Clover Hill students are met for the students who plan to pursue a career in the business field after high school and also those students who plan to enter college first.

TONY MARTIN: Introduction to Marketing, Marketing II, Advanced Marketing, and DECA Club Sponsor

Marketing Education is a vocational program designed to meet the needs of those people interested in or planning to enter a career which involves one or more of the marketing functions. Students at Clover Hill can enroll in any one of the following Marketing classes: Introduction to Marketing, Marketing II (school and on-the-job training), Advanced Marketing (Seniors only, school and on-the-job training) and Fashion Merchandising.

The Marketing Department is fortunate to be able to supplement their in-school instruction with community resources. This school year we made trips to White Flint in Rockville, Maryland, to the New York City Garment District, and to the Safeway Distribution Center. We enjoyed many guest speakers and participated in the window display contest at Mitchell's Formal Wear. We closed out the year with our Employer and Employee Banquet, held to thank the employers for their assistance this year, and our awards ceremony to honor graduating seniors and other outstanding students.

To have been this busy in a school year, a department has to have it "all together."

FIRST AID AND FITNESS

The Health and Physical Education Department at Clover Hill High School plays an important role in the education of its students. Not only is it mandatory for each student to graduate with two years of health and P.E., but it promotes physical fitness, sportsmanship, and good health.

Throughout their years in Physical Education, students are exposed to several sports, including hardyball, wiffleball, volleyball, tennis, aerobics, and several others. It is stressed that students are not judged on their athletic ability but are asked to put forth their best effort accompanied with good sportsmanship.

The health classes change from ninth to tenth grade; the freshman class is taught first aid principles and sex education, while the sophomore class has a curriculum of driver's education and mental health. Also, part of the sophomore year is behind-the-wheel training with one of the driving instructors.

There is also an advanced P.E. course offered to juniors and seniors only at Clover Hill who wish to continue this training during these years. The emphasis of this course is placed upon athletic activity.

The Clover Hill Special Education Department provides a unique type of support system to enable those students with learning difficulties and coping problems to learn. Students are taught new methods of compensation for their disabilities and become aware of learning strengths. Opportunities provided by the department include invididualized instruction in study skills, math, English, and geography; resource classes where a student is able to learn organizational skills while completing mainstream class assignments; tests read by L.D. teachers; coping skills class participation; and after school study sessions.

WE WORKED A COMPLEX PUZZLE . . .

This year the Ducemus staff was proud to represent Clover Hill in the nationwide fund-raiser, Hands Across America. Staff members Suzi Tate, Vernon Tate, Kim Anderson, Anita Southers, Marie Southers, Larry Robertson, Robin Turner, Sponsor Bonnie Palmer, and supporters Chris Grillo, Cory Butler, and Quinn Palmer attended the momentous occasion.

MISSING PIECES

IN THE . . . FILLING

Along with fun activities the staff was involved in, all members participated in the completion of this year's yearbook. The above members, as well as Carrie Kenward and Kirstin Laidig spent uncounted hours during and after school, and on weekends. Some of the staff members even worked through June after school had let out for the summer to complete the yearbook. Without their unselfishness and willingness to complete a task set before them, this yearbook would not have been possible.

Separating the pieces, and grouping like with like, the Cavalier puzzle began to slowly take shape. As edges and boundaries developed, a definite pattern became visible. Beginning efforts showed some working independently, confident they could do it alone. Others found it necessary to combine efforts. Unable to complete the puzzle alone, the individualists enlisted the aid of the groups, and the groups enlisted the aid of the individualists. Working together, individualists and groups alike realized that those persons and things they had believed to be misfits were what they needed to complete the puzzle. And with those missing pieces, the individualists and groups at Clover Hill have completed the Cavalier puzzle, showing that we truly are "all together."
